EXECUTIVE SLAIN IN OFFICE HERE BY FORMER EMPLOYEE

Discharged Worker Shoots Self in Suicide Attempt; Woman Cashier Struck by Bullet.

SECOND DOWNTOWN SHOOTING IN WEEK

Victim Recently Replaced Slayer as Manager of Insurance Branch Here.

The manager of an insurance company was shot and killed by a discharged employee, who then turned the weapon upon himself in an attempt to end his life, yesterday morning in a melodramatic shooting in an office building at Five Points. A wild bullet struck a woman cashier.

The shooting was the second in a week in Atlanta downtown office buildings.

The victim was Louie M. Hanks, 30, formerly of Montgomery, Ala., son of a director of the Praterians Life Insurance Company. He died in St. Joseph's infirmary several hours afterward, when unexpectedly he lapsed into a coma.

Cashier Wounded. The wounded cashier was Mrs. L. H. Barfield, 45, an aunt of the victim, who also acts as his secretary.

The former employee, D. A. Pledger, 42, of 74 Tenth street, N. W., was admitted to Grady hospital. His condition was described as critical. Police reported he shot himself in the mouth.

Pledger was discharged Thursday. The shooting threw fifth-floor offices of the William-Oliver building into an uproar.

Mrs. Barfield told police that the company's home office at Dallas, Texas, demoted Pledger from state manager to salesman about three months ago. Hanks was named as his successor to the higher post.

Converse At Desk. Recounting the shooting, the cashier said that Pledger came into the office in Room 507 shortly before 10 o'clock, presumably to make a final check of his accounts. He and Hanks conversed about 15 minutes at Hanks' desk.

"I had gone into an adjoining office," continued Mrs. Barfield, "and came back to the other office just as Pledger drew a revolver from a pocket of his trousers. I must have surprised him, for he turned quickly and fired the weapon at me."

"I threw out my arms, without thinking, instinctively. The bullet grazed my left wrist. I then ran out of the office and into the adjoining one."

After Mrs. Barfield rushed out, Pledger, according to police, fired point-blank at the man who had succeeded him as state manager. Pledger then walked into the outer office, calmly placed the muzzle of the weapon in his mouth and fired the third shot.

He sagged to the floor. The weapon, a .38-caliber revolver, was found at his feet when police arrived.

The mortally wounded Hanks,

SCHOOLS OBSERVE 127TH 'BIRTHDAY' OF ALEX STEPHENS

The memory of Georgia's chief contribution to the Confederacy, Alexander H. Stephens, will be honored in schools throughout the state today. It is the 127th anniversary of his birth. He served as vice president under Jefferson Davis, and was Governor when he died March 4, 1883.

The Stephens estate at Crawfordville has been converted into a park under the auspices of the U. D. C. and a memorial committee headed by Mrs. Horace M. Holden.

A statute of the 1938 legislature requires schools to observe the anniversary.

200 Bathtubs-But No Water In Palace of Arabian King

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—A palace of 200 rooms, each with a bathtub—but no running water—and with electric lighting fixtures throughout—but no electricity—was described today by Mr. and Mrs. Whitney Carpenter on their return from a trip through central Arabia.

The palace was that of King Ibn Saud at Riyadh. The king, who is 70 years old, has 250 wives, 29 sons and 22 daughters, the Carpenters said.

The bathtubs and electric fixtures were installed when Princess Alice, sister-in-law of Queen Mary, visited the capital.

Sixty Employees Adopt 'Nameless,' Dazed Dog Bereaved by Tragedy

They Call Him 'Dixie Flyer' The Train That Killed His Master.

By WILLARD COPE.

It was a different world yesterday for "Nameless." Empty, somehow, and poignant. Something had happened—something swift and terrifying. Just what, he wasn't sure. There had been a tremendous roar, a shrieking of metal grating upon metal, an ear-numbing blast from a whistle—and then a crash.

When it was all over "Nameless" had been propelled into cinders beside gleaming rails, and the man, the smiling man who had adopted him from the streets two months before, and talked kindly to him, and fed him scraps of meat and interesting bones—the man was gone.

"Nameless" had run all the way to the great yards where they bought and stored scrap metal which the man collected each day in his truck. It was the only place he knew to run to. But the man wasn't there. He didn't seem to be anywhere.

So "Nameless" stayed on yesterday at the plant of J. T. Knight and Sons, scrap metal dealers, of 972 Avon avenue, and waited. He didn't know he'd been readopted already by the 60 employees of the yard. He didn't know they'd changed his name to "Dixie Flyer"—a macabre touch having to do with the way the man, Alonzo Massey, had been fatally crushed Thursday night at the Avon avenue railroad crossing. He didn't know that, in Canton, they were making final arrangements for the burial at 11 o'clock this morning in peaceful Mount Zion churchyard. He didn't know he had been the man's only family since he came to Atlanta December 20 after his business of light trucking at Canton had fallen away.

DOMINICAN NAVAL BASE IS OFFERED AMERICAN FLEET

Strategic Samana Bay Made Available to U. S. Warships, Emphasizing New World Solidarity.

VITAL GAP IN CANAL DEFENSES MENED

America's Anti-Fascist Spirit Flares in Attack Upon Italian Sailors.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(UP)—President Roosevelt's program for continental defense of the western hemisphere was aided this week by the Dominican republic, which made Samana bay, on the eastern coast of the island, available for use by the United States fleet.

Samana bay, a strategically located inlet about 100 miles across Nona passage from Puerto Rico, was offered ostensibly for use of the fleet during current winter maneuvers. It was expected, however, that it might become a permanent naval station through a long-term lease arrangement with the Dominican government. Its addition to the chain of bases across the Caribbean closes an important gap in the navy's line of defenses of the Panama Canal and the entire Central American area.

Along with facilities at Guantanamo bay, Cuba, and Isla Grande, off the Puerto Rican coast, a naval station at Samana bay, which has room to base several surface vessels as well as aircraft, would assure a strong defense of all approaches to the canal.

The use of Samana bay as a base marks the first acceptance by a Latin American government of President Roosevelt's proposal that American continental defense be undertaken by all countries from Canada to Cape Horn. The site was recommended as a naval station, according to reports, by a naval board that investigated possible Caribbean bases a year ago in a general plan to tighten up canal defenses. Besides the use of the bay, the Dominican government gave American military and naval planes permission to land anywhere on the waters or territory of the republic.

The friendly gesture of that country was regarded as refuting reports in recent months that Gen-

Catholic Dignitaries Kneel in Prayer at Bier of Beloved Pope Pius

Clergy and Vatican dignitaries are shown kneeling in silent prayer at the bedside of Pope Pius XI shortly after the beloved "Apostle of Peace" breathed his last at dawn Friday. Members of the Swiss Guard, in dress uniform, stand at the head of the bed—a bed of brass so modest and simple in design it sharply contrasts with the superlative opulence of the Vatican. The entire bedchamber where the Pontiff fought against death appears, in its simplicity, little more than a monk's cell. Above the bed hangs a painting of the Madonna; on another wall is a painting of the crucifixion with a kneeling stool beneath. An armchair, two straight chairs and a desk of severe lines complete the furnishings. The Pope is shown dressed in a silk cassock, over which is a crimson mozzetta. This picture was telephoned from Rome to London, radioed to New York, then telephoned to Atlanta.

AYCOCK RECEIVES 2-YEAR SENTENCE

Jury Out Less Than 30 Minutes Before Reaching Verdict of Guilty.

Frank J. Aycock, former city policeman, yesterday was found guilty of accepting bribes from two pre-repeal bootleggers and sentenced to serve two years on the public works by Judge Hugh M. Dorsey, of Fulton county superior court.

The trial jury debated the case less than 30 minutes before returning its verdict.

William Schley Howard and John Hudson, defense counsel, immediately served notice they would ask a new trial, and Judge Dorsey set March 11 as the date for argument. In the meantime, Aycock will remain at liberty under a $1,000 appeal bond.

The case went to the jury late in the afternoon after the defense had brought a score of witnesses to the stand to testify to the good character of the defendant and the bad character of prosecution witnesses.

E. E. (Shorty) Andrews, special racketeer prosecutor, demanded conviction on both counts of the indictment, while Howard and Hudson, contended their client was innocent and the object of a "spite persecution by men whose business he raided."

G. B. Scoggins, who was indicted jointly with Aycock on the same counts, previously was convicted and is likewise under a two-year sentence. Pending final adjudication of his case, Scoggins is free on bond.

Scoggins appeared as a witness in Aycock's behalf during the latter stages of the trial.

Two other policemen—R. R. Davis and J. A. Bailey—also have faced juries on similar charges and have been convicted. Appeals are pending in all the cases.

Aycock was charged specifically with accepting $25 each from Paul Johnson and Jimmy Roberts to protect their liquor business before the repeal of the Georgia prohibition law.

Tardy Tag Buyers Given Fire More Days of Grace

Five more days of grace for Georgia automobile owners to get their tags without penalty were given yesterday by the general assembly and Governor Rivers. The senate approved a resolution already passed by the house extending the deadline for obtaining tags without penalty to February 15. The Governor signed the resolution yesterday afternoon. Some 100,000 Georgians still have not purchased licenses for their cars, E. T. Williams, director of the tag division, said.

3 U. S. Cardinals Hurrying to Vatican; Millions Mourn as Pope Pius Lies in State

Liner Rex To Be Held for Mundelein, Dougherty; O'Connell Off Monday

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Millions of sorrowing Catholics of this country prayed tonight for the soul of the dead Pope Pius, as the three cardinals of the United States made urgent preparations to assure the participation for the first time of an American group of the hierarchy in the elevation of a new pontiff.

Denise Cardinal Dougherty, of Philadelphia, made reservations to sail for Rome tomorrow aboard the Italian liner Rex; George Cardinal Mundelein, of Chicago, broke off his Florida vacation and took train for New York to join the ship.

The aged William Cardinal O'Connell, of Boston, abandoning tentative plans to fly from Nassau in the Bahamas to New York in time to catch the Rex, left on the S. S. Britannic tonight for New York, where he plans to board the S. S. Saturnia for Rome. The Britannic is due at New York Monday. His two companions will precede him on the Rex.

The liner Rex will be held beyond her regular sailing time until the cardinals are aboard and, if she proceeds on schedule, will arrive in Naples—a three-hour train journey from Rome—February 18, a full week at least before the conclave of cardinals is convened to choose Pius' successor.

Opportunity for Voice. This opportunity to have a voice in the selection of a Pope, the most important ever to fall to prelates of this country, was made possible by Pius himself upon his elevation 17 years ago as the 261st head of the Church of Rome.

At the death of Pope Benedict XV on January 22, 1922, Cardinal O'Connell took the first available boat, but arrived in Rome after the ancient ritual of election had been completed, and Achille Cardinal Ratti had become Pope Pius XI.

He spoke of his sorrow at having been unable to participate in this, one of the most majestic of all the tasks of the cardinals and Pius promised him that after his own death ample time would be allowed to permit the arrival of every cardinal.

Although American Catholics are financially the heaviest contributors to the church, and the country's Catholic population grew from 17,000,000 to 20,000,000 during the reign of Pius XI, there appeared little likelihood that the white wisp of smoke arising from the Sistine chapel would announce an American Pope.

U. S. CONDOLENCES CABLED BY HULL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Secretary Hull, expressing the "profound condolences" of President Roosevelt, cabled the Vatican today that Pope Pius' death was "received with deep sorrow throughout the United States."

Hull's message to Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state, said: "The President desires me to express to Your Eminence profound condolences on the death of His Holiness, Pope Pius XI. His great spiritual qualities and his zeal for peace and tolerance won him a place in the hearts of all races and creeds. Word of his passing has been received with deep sorrow throughout the United States."

LONDON, Feb. 10.—(AP)—The death of Pope Pius XI, an apostle of peace in a world tormented with strife, caused common grief today among Catholics, the one-fifth of the earth's people of whom he was spiritual father, and non-Catholics alike.

Flags throughout Europe flew at half staff and from many nations came expressions of sympathy, tribute and grief.

On all public buildings in Berlin swastika flags were ordered flown at half-mast as a mark of respect for the Pope's death.

Foreign embassies and legations took similar action.

White and Red Vestments Adorn Body of Pontiff in Sistine Chapel

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 10.—(AP) Pope Pius XI, dressed in papal vestments of white and red lay in state tonight under the famous frescoes of Michelangelo in the Sistine chapel.

His body, taken this afternoon from the brass bed where he died just before daybreak, was borne to the chapel on the shoulders of stalwart guards in a stately and colorful procession of lay and ecclesiastical dignitaries.

Tomorrow morning it will be taken in an even more elaborate procession to St. Peter's cathedral where the faithful—lowly as well as noble-born—may pay homage to "the pope of peace" before burial next Wednesday.

The pontiff's death, on the eve of the 10th anniversary of the signing of the Lateran accord, which healed the breach between the Italian state and the Holy See, and only four days after he had marked the 17th anniversary of his elevation to the papal throne, thrust upon the shoulders of Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli the temporary administration of the Church of Rome.

Cardinal Pacelli ceased to be papal secretary of state and became camerlengo—Chamberlain of the Holy Roman church—in which position he will guide the government until the 262d occupant of the throne of St. Peter shall have been selected.

The successor to Pius XI will be chosen by the college of cardinals, now numbering 62 members, in a secret conclave whose opening date still was indefinite tonight.

It will be no sooner than February 25 and no later than February 28, depending on when American and other foreign cardinals reach Rome.

The maximum of 18 days after

Hapeville Liquor Election Voted For 11th of March by City Council

A resolution calling for a referendum March 11 on legalizing sale of liquor in Hapeville was adopted unanimously last night by the city council.

Approval of the plan, it was pointed out, would make the municipality "an oasis" for that section as both College Park and East Point are dry as the result of prohibitive license charges.

Council members expressed the opinion they were willing "to let the people decide" the issue and

Say That Much Could Be Cut in Education Unit; Find 'Keeper of Drunks'

Checks for school teachers totaling $2,181,000 will be placed in the mails today, Governor Rivers announced yesterday after completing arrangements for a bank loan, the interest on which was appropriated earlier in the day by the general assembly.

The chief executive announced he had made the loan at the Fulton National bank at 1 per cent interest, one-half of 1 per cent less than the 1 1/2 per cent authorized by the legislature. The loan will not pay all of the past due salaries. Officials announced the amount will pay only about six weeks' salaries for the teachers who are two and a half months behind.

Economy Meeting. Meanwhile, Speaker Roy V. Harris called a meeting of the administration leaders of the house and the economy committee to put into effect the recommendations of the economy group. Governor Rivers will participate in the meeting which will be held tomorrow night in the speaker's offices at the Henry Grady hotel.

The economy committee yesterday recommended additional reorganization of the State Department of Education, changes which it said would save upwards of a quarter of a million dollars.

Governor Rivers said the money for the school loan would be placed in the state treasury this morning and that he immediately would honor a school department warrant for it, permitting the checks to leave the capital today.

Saves $5,500. "Following a series of discussions with Mr. Ryburn G. Clay I am happy to announce that the bank loan is being made by the Fulton National for one per cent interest," Governor Rivers said. "This will not require use of all of the $16,500 appropriated by the

Regulation of Radio Upheld

FCC Counsel Discloses, However, That Talk of Rigid Censorship by Government Is Untrue.

Radio must be regulated by some federal agency, George Porter, assistant general counsel in charge of broadcasting of the Federal Communications Commission, said here yesterday.

"Whether the air should be regulated by a board of three, six, seven or more men, I don't know, but I am not in favor of its regulation by one man," he said. "Radio wields a tremendous influence, and all that power should be centered in nothing less than a bi-partisan board."

Porter said that most of the criticism now directed against the Federal Communications Commission had no basis in fact. He called most of it "the wailing of persons who have been refused broadcasting licenses."

"No Censorship."

The commission's activities do not constitute censorship as such, Porter stated, but rather a system by which the broadcaster can "check up on himself," and be assured he is "doing the right thing." The theory of the present law is self regulation. There is much talk of censorship, he remarked, but it does not exist in fact or practice.

Porter attended a hearing yesterday on an Arkansas radio station's application for a renewal of its license. A station is granted a license for six months only, he explained, and it is usually renewed automatically. But when the commission receives complaints of bad service, or one of its engineers finds the station broadcasting out of its regular wavelength, an investigation is made. If the commission finds that the station has been violating regulations, the renewal is denied. There have been abuses of this freedom in the past, he said, but the broadcasters of the country as a whole realize their responsibility.

The commission functions under a deluge of letters from listeners who complain of everything, including too strong language. So the commission has ruled that stations may broadcast "damn" to the world, but cannot preface the word.

And while a station may send out "hell," with all 50,000 watts behind it, they will probably be up for investigation at the end of six months if they tell anybody to go there.

Porter lamented he is unable to go out on the road more often for real information, instead of having to rely on letters. But, he said, the commission polices the air, the telephone and the telegraph systems of the nation with only 500 employees, and on a budget of $2,000,000 a year.

The United States has gradually awakened to the fact that Europe has been shooting steady streams of propaganda toward South and Central America for many years, and has begun to work out a counter-offensive, Porter said, adding that two large companies now were building short wave stations to give southern neighbors the benefits of "swing" and other national blessings.

Sweeping Changes in Vote Rules, 'Purge' in County Lists Sought

Three Important Moves Follow Official Tabulation of Results Showing Hailey Landslide; Adams Takes 'Evidence' Before Grand Jury.

Official tabulation of results of Thursday's election of G. H. Hailey as county commissioner yesterday was the signal for three important moves.

First, election managers and clerks initiated a drive for new registration laws based principally on the New York system which provides for re-registration of all voters at least every four years. Enactment of the proposal would abandon the present permanent registration list now in vogue in Fulton county.

Second, Dr. Charles Ross Adams, county commissioner, who February 1 charged one-man domination of county affairs for the past two years to George F. Longino, and asserted waste and extravagance were general in county administration, appeared before the grand jury bearing bulky records which he said supported his charges.

Third, election managers collected a list of 1,000 names of voters they insisted were on the registration lists illegally, for submission to the county board of registrars. Included in the list were more than 100 persons now deceased, about 350 who have moved out of the state, and scores of others who do not now reside in the precincts in which they are registered, according to records made by the election managers.

Press Huddleston was continued as chairman of a special committee of election managers seeking to purge the registration lists and correct registration laws.

William Brandt, secretary of the special committee, yesterday was dispatched to the registrars' office in the courthouse building to see if the lists the poll workers prepared Thursday could be delivered and if the registrars had completed work on lists they were preparing and on which they wished the election officials to assist.

After visiting the office, Brandt reported that the door was closed and there was no one in the office. "The lists, therefore, remained in Huddleston's custody pending delivery to W. W. Gaines, chairman of the board.

Gaines last night attempted to reach Huddleston to explain that BAINBRIDGE, Ga., Feb. 10.—(P)—An automobile accident on the Atlanta highway near here last night resulted in fatal injury to Boozier Heath Anderson, 37, taxicab operator, of Bainbridge.

A companion, Horace Wilson, was seriously injured.

The car left the road and overturned on a hill several miles from Bainbridge, when Anderson is said to have lost control of the machine. He was thrown from the car and fatally hurt, dying about an hour later, being brought to a local hospital.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed late today.

Wilson is reported to have suffered a fractured back and head lacerations.

Anderson, formerly of Mitchell county, is survived by his mother, Mrs. J. J. Anderson, and a sister, Mrs. C. J. Pope, of Bainbridge.

IMPORTATION OF OIL

HIT BY SOUTHERNERS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(P)—A campaign to cut down imports of agricultural oils and fats developed today in the house.

A dozen southern and midwestern congressmen discussed this suggestion as a means of halting a drop in market prices for domestic oils and fats, particularly those from cottonseed, peanuts, and animals.

Representative Pace, Democrat, Georgia, said the conference reached no decision, but that participants agreed to study the question with a view to both an immediate and a long-range solution.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE FEAR THEORY TOLD

John Randall Dunn, of Boston, Lectures on Contribution to Human Race.

"One of the primary and outstanding effects of a Christian Science treatment is the nullifying of fear," stated John Randall Dunn, C. S. B., in a lecture entitled "Christian Science: The Revelation of Truth Triumphant" delivered yesterday under the auspices of First Church of Christ, Scientist, here. Mr. Dunn, from Boston, was introduced by Joseph J. Hopkins.

"Had Mrs. Eddy given the human family nothing else but this wonderful paragraph in the Christian Science textbook, 'Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures,' dealing with the overcoming of fear, she would immeasurably have blessed the race," Dr. Dunn said. "She writes (Science and Health, p. 411): 'Always begin your treatment by allaying the fear of patients. Silently reassure them as to their exemption from disease and danger. Watch the result of this simple rule of Christian Science, and you will find that it alleviates the symptoms of every disease. If you succeed in wholly removing the fear, your patient is healed. The great fact that God lovingly governs all, never punishing aught but sin, is your standpoint, from which to advance and destroy the human fear of sickness.' Would it not seem that the suggestion of fear could be at mortals from every angle? Human beings are literally immersed in such suggestion."

"The man or woman who opens the door of his thinking to the suggestion of fear, at that moment is forgetting God and His harmonious, indestructible image. Be ready for this aggressive suggestion, whenever or wherever it would rear its ugly head. Recognize it as not a valid idea or thought proceeding from the Father-Mother Mind, but mortal-mind suggestion, which, to use Jesus' word, is a liar, and the father of it. So, as long as God, Truth, is not telling you that you are afraid, you recognize the argument of fear as not your real thought, but only mortal mind talking about itself. Says the Scripture, 'There were they in great fear, where no fear was!' Fear is a darkness, ignorance, which flees before the sunshine of Truth."

Adams declined to make any statement after he emerged from the grand jury room, asserting "the grand jury asked me specifically to keep out of the newspaper until after it has a chance to decide what it should do."

He added he will respect the injunction, said to have been delivered through Frank Mitchell, foreman. Longino had "no statement to make yesterday."

Longino probably will not be called until after Tuesday's meeting of the grand jury at which Robert Strickland, president of the Trust Company of Georgia, and Ryburn Clay, president of the Fulton National Bank, will be asked to appear. The bank executives will be asked to give grand jury members their view of the county's financial status.

Neither Strickland nor Clay had any "intimation" yesterday along what lines they would be questioned, but it is known that the county probably will seek to borrow about $2,000,000 for current expenses from members of the Atlanta Clearing House Association in March.

While county finances were occupying the center of the stage yesterday, it was reported that a bill establishing a budget control of county fiscal affairs already had been drawn and was in the hands of Senator G. Everett Millican.

Hailey defeated 12 opponents by a vote of more than two-to-one, receiving 7,403 of the 10,427 votes cast. His nearest opponent, L. Marvin Roberts, Buckhead drug-gist, got 2,051 votes. The registration list carried 46,707 names.

Hailey yesterday issued a statement thanking the voters.

G. H. COLE'S DEATH CALLED SUICIDE

Panthersville Man Found Wounded in Home.

George H. Cole, 24, of Panthersville, was found fatally wounded at his home early yesterday. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide.

Surviving are his wife; his father, M. E. Cole; seven brothers, A. E., J. F., E. L., J. R., V. C., J. O. and Bennie Cole, and three sisters, Mrs. Lewis White and Misses Madeleine and Mary Ellen Cole.

Funeral services will be conducted at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning at the Friendship Baptist church by the Rev. J. O. Moore and the Rev. G. W. Jackson. Burial will be in Friendship cemetery under direction of A. S. Turner & Sons.

ROOSEVELT'S COLD REPORTED BETTER

Slight Fever Disappears; Visitors Barred.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(P)—President Roosevelt's head cold had turned into a touch of gripple today, and his physician ordered him to remain in bed and to receive no callers.

An improvement was noted tonight. Dr. Ross T. McIntire, White House physician, reported that a fever of one degree recorded earlier had disappeared.

The President's press secretary, Stephen Early, also was ordered home with a head cold.

The chief executive first noticed a cold coming on yesterday, but he received several callers in his private study.

COUNCILMEN SPLIT OVER HAILEY POST

Sixth Ward Delegation Division Threatened on Successor's Choice.

A split in city council over nomination of a successor to Alderman G. H. Hailey, newly-elected Fulton county commissioner, threatened yesterday, as result of division among the sixth ward delegation.

Although Councilman Howard Haire would make no definite commitment, it was indicated he would support Raleigh Drennon, a former councilman from the old ninth ward, for the post.

Councilman Frank Wilson, the other sixth ward representative, was said to be throwing his support to Chess Smith, Atlanta merchant.

Under the rule established by precedent, council usually follows the recommendations of the ward delegation in designating a successor for a vacated post. However, a fight followed the recent resignation of Alderman Roy Callaway when council balked on the customary procedure.

"I haven't had a chance to talk the matter over thoroughly with Wilson," Haire said. "I understand he is insisting on Smith's nomination, but as far as I'm concerned now I will continue to support Drennon."

"I don't care to be quoted," Wilson declared. "However, you can say that I'm sure we'll get together next week."

Asked if he would fall in line with Haire to keep harmony in the sixth ward delegation, Wilson refused to give a direct answer but indicated he would stick by his present choice. More than 20 candidates began "politicizing" for the post before Hailey's election to the county commission. Political observers pointed out there was a possibility Haire and Wilson might switch their "blessings" to a third man in order to preserve harmony in council.

WOOLEN WORKERS TO VOTE ON TWOC

Bargaining Election To Be Held Here in 15 Days.

A bargaining election will be held within 15 days among employees in production and maintenance departments of the Atlanta Woolen Mills, it was announced at Washington yesterday by the National Labor Relations Board.

The employees will decide whether they wish to be represented by the Textile Workers' Organizing Committee, CIO affiliate. Approximately 350 workers are eligible to vote.

EXPORTS AND IMPORTS SHOW DROP IN GEORGIA

Exports through the Georgia customs district for 1938 totaled $19,959,909, as compared with $29,717,311 for 1937. W. H. Schroeder, district manager of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce reported yesterday. Imports for consumption during the year were valued at $12,138,506, against $16,438,046 for 1937.

Exports through the district for last December were $1,613,075 as compared with $2,103,643 for December, 1937. December imports were valued at $966,453, against $1,108,616 for the same month of the preceding year. Textile fibers and manufactures were Georgia's leading exports last year, while chemical and related products led the list of imports.

MUSCOGEE PRISONERS REMOVED TO HAMILTON

COLUMBUS, Ga., Feb. 10.—(P)

Seven Muscogee county prisoners, awaiting trial, have been moved from the city stockade here to the Harris County jail at Hamilton.

Action was taken as a result of a jail break at the stockade Sunday in which eight escaped. Another attempted delivery was frustrated with the discovery of six hawksaws in a pipe in the jail. The stockade has been used for county prisoners pending erection of a new county jail to replace the one wrecked by an explosion on October 21.

CHIEF FOOD INSPECTOR OF GEORGIA RESIGNS

Immediate resignation of T. F. Purvis as chief food inspector in the State Department of Agriculture was announced yesterday by Columbus Roberts, commissioner of agriculture.

He appointed E. P. Long, an employee in the food department, as acting chief inspector.

Roberts did not ascribe any reason for Purvis's resignation. The commissioner also announced that S. B. Ward, of Ringgold, an inspector in the food department, "will not be connected with the department after February 15."

BENNING OUTFIT PLANS NEW ORLEANS 'MARCH'

COLUMBUS, Ga., Feb. 10.—(P)

The chemical warfare service company will leave Fort Benning Monday on a practice march that will take the unit to New Orleans. The troops will participate in National Defense Week ceremonies in that city. They will return to Fort Benning February 23.

Atlanta Retail Furniture Dealers Urged To Do Own House Cleaning

Nathan Sachs, National Leader, Outlines Industry's Prospects Here.

Retail furniture dealers of Atlanta were admonished by Nathan Sachs, of New York, chairman of the trades' relations committee of the National Retail Furniture Association, to remedy the ills within their business by cleaning up unfair and unethical practices wherever they should exist.

Speaking at a luncheon of the Atlanta retail organization yesterday at the Atlanta Athletic Club, Mr. Sachs emphasized the abolition of "purchasing privileges" to employees of industrial organizations, the boycott of "open showrooms," and the adoption of new methods of advertising and retailing furniture.

Anger for Future.

Mr. Sachs, who has just completed a tour of the country, declared that statistics available from the national organization indicated that business is definitely on the upturn and that the furniture industry could look forward to "enjoying" from five to ten years of "unparalleled prosperity." With the exception of the east, where weather conditions have prevented rebuilding, there have been engaging in "lip service" but have taken no constructive steps to remedy any of the ills within our own ranks.

"Never Mind Other Fellow."

"It is time we cleaned our own house. Never mind the other fellow. Operate your business your own way and you can make a profit."

He urged selling furniture on a "decorative basis," declaring that the salesman who did not have a knowledge of decoration was of little use in the trade.

ness have been 'burying our heads in the sand' for too long a time," Mr. Sachs said. "For 25 years we have been engaging in 'lip service' but have taken no constructive steps to remedy any of the ills within our own ranks."

He urged selling furniture on a "decorative basis," declaring that the salesman who did not have a knowledge of decoration was of little use in the trade.

WIFE GOES TO JAIL IN MILLEN SLAYING

Mate of Slain Sheriff Transferred From Hospital in Savannah.

MILLEN, Ga., Feb. 10.—(P)—Ailing Sheriff Cleve Humphrey, of Jenkins county, returned to Milten today after arranging to have Mrs. Dan Johnson, charged with murder in her husband's death, transferred from a hospital to the Chatham county jail.

Johnson, Jenkins sheriff, was shot to death at his Milten home January 31. A coroner's jury said he died of a "bullet said to have been inflicted accidentally by his wife." Johnson's brother, Roy, swore out the murder warrant.

Mrs. Johnson, daughter of the Rev. Charles G. Ernest, prominent Methodist minister of Claxton, was taken to Savannah in a highly nervous condition for hospitalization. Her husband was a city councilman and former president of the First National Bank of Milten.

Acting Sheriff Humphrey said her condition was improved and did not warrant further hospitalization.

BOOKIE'S CASHIER ACCUSES HINES

$500 Check From Schultz Mob Traced in Court.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(P)—A race track bookie's cashier testified today at the retrial of James J. Hines that he received from Hines' betting agent a $500 check indorsed "J. Hines," which allegedly had been paid to the Tammany district leader by the attorney of the Dutch Schultz policy racket.

The witness, Carl Von Lautz, said he received the check from Ed Holley, a Hines lieutenant, in June, 1934, to cover gambling losses and indorsed it.

Mrs. Rose Wendroff, a sister of J. Richard (Dixie) Davis, former lawyer for the Schultz mob, previously testified she gave the $500 check to Hines on June 22, 1934.

'Friday the 13th' a Jinx?

'Nuts' Says Army Fliers

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(P)—The army air corps made up its collective mind that the "Friday the 13th" jinx doesn't exist.

Captain C. B. Overstreet Jr., found himself at Kelly Field, Texas, on Friday the 13th last month, poised for a flight to March Field, Calif.

His plane's number was 13. The ship held 13 passengers. And the trip was over a 1,300 mile course. Yes, he made it.

'FIVE-YEAR PLAN' ADOPTED BY Y.M.C.A.

Convention Backs Program for Expansion and To Wipe Out Debts.

Georgia Chapters of the Young Men's Christian Association concluded the one-day convention here last night with a business session in the Central "Y" auditorium. The meeting was attended by more than 80 representatives from Y. M. C. A., Hi-Y, and Tri-Hi-Y clubs in the south.

A new "Five Year Plan" for paying off debts, increasing the number of Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y clubs from the present 232 to 350, expanding to include grade school boys and girls, and the invitation of bequests, was presented to the delegates.

During 1939 it was proposed that the state Y. M. C. A.'s initiate inter-association conferences and meetings, establish a state-wide Bible Study project with a minimum goal of 15,000 participants, and clear off all of the state debt.

Baxter Jones, delegate from Macon, presented the five-year program, which the assembly adopted. Guest speaker was Blake W. Godfrey, Mississippi state Y. M. C. A. secretary, who addressed the delegates on "Sui Generis."

J. L. Bennett, of the Savannah Y. M. C. A., reported that since 1933 there had been an increase of 22 per cent in state membership, and a decreased debt of $62,000.

A plea for endowments "similar to those which have been showered upon Georgia's colleges," for the state Y. M. C. A.'s organization was made by Bennett.

Committees appointed by the convention included the vacancy and finance committee and the National Council delegates. I. C. Moyer, of Columbus, John R. Glenn, of Waycross, and P. M. Colbert, of Atlanta; were named to the first, and C. A. White, of Waycross, Dr. George M. Sparks, of Atlanta, and T. T. Shepherd, of Savannah, to the second.

POPE PIUS XI

The religious world, Catholic and non-Catholic, will mourn the passing of Pope Pius XI as the loss of an ecclesiastical prince of outstanding stature in the troubled times of his reign. In a day in which material forces clash as never before in the history of the world; in a day in which man, hardened in the blazing hatred of modern nationalism, turns more and more from spiritual to temporal gain, Pope Pius stood as a rock in the midst of this swirl of passions, a living example of faith for Christians of his belief and of all beliefs.

He was strong as few religious leaders have had to keep the strength. Saddened in heart by the tribulations of his people and of other peoples, he never hesitated to speak out in protest. His condemnation of the Italian racial laws was the latest and one of the strongest of his appeals to the reason of man.

The Pope ascended the throne of his church at a time when the world was entering a period of tremendous change, facing the mounting power of the state and the restriction of the power of the church in the spiritual life of its peoples. It was an era in which the powerful forces of radio and the modern printing press combined to the dissemination of strange and inhuman doctrines; in which a war-torn morale blinded millions to the decencies that civilization had bulged; in which man strove for eternal peace and found human frailties blocking the path. These changes and failures he met without fear and without yielding. He himself turned to the radio in appeals to the conscience of mankind, to the new values press for the wider dissemination of Christian belief, urging peace to the world and forbearance to his flock in the hours of oppression.

The task of his successor will be heavy, yet infinitely less difficult because of the great and good work of Pope Pius XI. The Lateran treaties and the consummate diplomacy of Pius have removed many of the difficulties of the office, yet troubled times will require the full attention of a powerful figure.

The world will mourn with the members of his faith. His work extended to all mankind; embraced all in its kindly deeds. He served Him well.

MELTING MILES

The wings of war—on an errand of peace—this week melted miles in a graphic demonstration of America's defense range, and, by the same token, her danger should a foreign power gain a firm foothold on this continent.

The flight of the "flying fortress" south to Chile with earthquake relief supplies aboard was more significant than the mass flight of the huge army bombers to Argentina last year. It was made under simulated war conditions, without long preparation and without the spotting of advance bases and crews. Under actual wartime conditions, the flight from the Canal Zone to Santiago, Chile, could and would have been made without an intermediate stop at Lima, Peru. It would have been from Langley field to the Canal Zone, to Santiago. The number of craft which could have made the journey would be conditioned solely upon the availability of landing area and ground servicing at the Canal Zone, and at Santiago.

It is even more significant when linked with an obscure news item last week reporting the loss of a passenger airplane of the Scadta line in the jungles while on an exploration trip over the plains of eastern Colombia. It was manned by a crew of four—each a member of the German air corps reserve. The Scadta line—owned and operated by Germans—has operated in Colombia for more than 10 years and has constructed several bases for operation. Whether or not all of its activities are known to the United States government, or even the Colombian government, is another question. Colombia is within easy striking distance of the Panama Canal and any future Nicaraguan canal. It is also, for huge bombers of the fortress type, within striking distance of the United States.

It is no idle boast for Germans and Italians to say that they place their frontiers at the Panama Canal and the Rio Grande. The isolationists say this isn't practical, but aren't they fencing with an empty word?

A late cable has Franco learning the German and Italian languages, as in running post-war Spain he will want to know what he has to say.

It is proposed in Tennessee that tobacco auctioneers be made by law to speak distinctly, slowly and intelligibly. And then what have you got?

A FRIEND AT COURT

The deep interest of President Roosevelt in things southern is reflected in the nomination of J. Haden Aldredge to be a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission. The President has often intimated his belief that the inequalities of the freight rate structure imposed an unsupportable burden upon the region. The nomination of Aldredge and the reappointment of William E. Lee is pleasing to southerners who have been impressed with the attitude of Commissioner Lee, who conducted the hearings in the case brought by southern governors seeking a readjustment of rates. Although he naturally could not express an opinion on the validity of the demands, he accorded the south every opportunity to present its viewpoint for the record.

Dr. Aldredge is probably more familiar with the freight rate structure which handicaps the south than any other single individual. He prepared, under the Tennessee Valley Authority aegis, a comprehensive report on the subject which brought forth in detail the stranglehold influence of high rates and from which is drawn the inescapable conclusion that other measures for the development of the entire south would prove fruitless unless and until these inequalities are adjusted.

The conception of "official territory" rates in comparison with those of other sections has been deeply imbedded in the philosophy governing the actions of members of the Interstate Commerce Commission. It may be that the new and authoritative voice of Dr. Aldredge will result in a more national viewpoint on the part of the commissioners.

In any event, the south cannot permit the present structure to be retained if the region can hope to progress normally. The appointment of the new commissioner will prove a powerful force in that fight.

THE NEW COMMISSIONER

The election of Gloor Hailey to the county commission brings to that office a citizen of long experience in legislative councils and one admirably fitted for the duties of the position in the period faced by the Fulton board.

His long business experience should stand him in good stead as a member of the governmental body of the county, while his service of approximately six years in city council will prove valuable in the adjustment of Atlanta-Fulton problems. The peculiar problems of each body will be familiar to him, and will lend weight to his voice in the settlement of each as they arise.

Mr. Hailey has served the sixth ward as alderman, and in addition has served as the mayor pro tem. The confidence of the people of his ward has been well merited and was repaid in his re-election to the post he now relinquishes to become a member of the county commission. In the serious period of adjustment which that body now faces, his experience should be of considerable value to the people of Atlanta and of Fulton county.

TANKER RESCUES

Away from the heavy passenger routes of the North Atlantic it is almost impossible to have a sea disaster without being rescued by a tanker that has been plodding its way along somewhere in the neighborhood. At least that is the story of the American Petroleum Institute.

The rescue of the passengers of the British Imperial Airways' Cavalier by the Esso Baytown, with resultant publicity, is nothing unusual, the institute reports, although ordinarily the drama centers around the sleek passenger liners rather than the wallowing, rotund little vessels with the gurgling insides.

These ubiquitous little travelers usually are nearest to whatever decides to happen, either on or off the shipping lanes of the Seven Seas—one in every third vessel roaming the water highways is a tanker, and seldom a week passes that a rescue is not placed in the log to their credit.

So scorn not the stunted little craft. They look for all the world like the Queen Mary from the vantage point of a spar or life belt in the loneliness of a madcap sea.

A western town council promises action on protests that the collar on local beer is too high. No half-way measure, we trust.

Our coast and geodetic survey is in a position now, it says, to determine the shape of the earth—something more exact than just terrible.

According to Princeton savants, the 200-inch telescope now nearing completion may solve the riddle of the universe. Will it settle how high is up?

Editorial of the Day

WHICH OF THE TWO?

(From The Charleston News and Courier)

Pictures, busts, monuments, poems, are not necessities of life. They are luxuries. The authority of democratic government is stretched to buy them. Should its authority be stretched to support artists?

Conceding, only for discussion's sake, that it is the duty of the federal government to give alms to the poor, the cold and starving, it may be said that those classes should not be denied alms because they are artists or pretend to be. The News and Courier holds that an able-bodied artist who can't sell his pictures or his verses should paint fences or get his meat and bread as a troubadour.

For government to become the patron and subsidizer of art may be defended, but for any patron of art, private or public, to make failure and poverty a ground for the selection of artists is nonsensical. In the United States inability of genius to earn a living is prima facie evidence that the genius isn't there.

The policy of the WPA is to exclude from its pay rolls artists who are earning a living, to them government is giving a penny; hence as a patron of the arts it is turning its back on first principles, rejecting the primary tests that indicate possession of talent or genius.

To encourage art by rounding up the unsuccessful artists and supporting some tens of thousands of them with the object or hope of discovering one worth while among the thousands is symptom of a cubist idea of art in the governmental mind and is beyond our understanding. We can understand the notion of feeding a man because he is hungry.

Discontinuing government's art projects would cause no dearth of works of art.

THE CAPITAL PARADE FAIR ENOUGH

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

CAREER SERVICE WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—In the Washington of the moment, loud with controversy and redolent of partisanship, an important action which is also plainly wise and disinterested ought to shine like the traditional good deed in a naughty world. Such an action is the President's recent appointment of a committee to study the problem of a federal career service. Yet, instead of shining, it has passed strangely unnoticed.

It is difficult to exaggerate the importance of the President's new move. Its meaning may be grasped from the statement of persons close to the White House that the President's committee is intended to produce an equivalent of the famous British civil service. It's a Utopian project, considering that government by hacks, both political and bureaucratic, seems to be an ingrained American habit. The time has long since passed when vast extensions in governmental powers and astronomical increases in governmental expenditures made government by hacks desperately risky. But nothing serious was done until the other day, when the President appointed his committee. It's pleasant to be able to record that the composition of the committee, which includes such men as Justices Felix Frankfurter and Stanley Reed, gives hope of real achievement.

PRESIDENTIAL GESTURE Oddly enough, the story of the President's new committee begins with an executive order of last June, covering into the federal civil service (so very different from the British organization of the same name) about 80,000 government employees. Such orders are customarily issued by chief executives in their second terms, for they are gestures of governmental purity which also give life jobs to the faithful.

This particular order of the President's was remarkably sweeping, however. It included the 5,000 top men—lawyers, economists, technicians, scientists and administrative officials—who really run the government, under the direction of the cabinet members and heads of agencies. The order occupied the same relative positions as the 1,400 high permanent officials whom most people think of when they mention the "British civil service." Two issues were immediately raised by this inclusiveness of the President's.

In the first place, good lawyers, economists and administrators cannot be recruited by the piddling categorical method of the federal civil service, which does not seek able men, but only men able to do specific tasks. In the second place, such departments as justice, the order would have given civil service protection to inordinate numbers of patronage maggots.

Much disturbed, Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson called a meeting of the general counsels of all government departments and agencies, whose work would have been especially hampered by the President's order. After study, they decided that getting good lawyers was an impossible task under existing civil service rules, and asked the Civil Service Commission for an exemption. The exemption was refused, and they took the matter to the President.

FIRST-CLASS MINDS Among the New Dealers, so many of whom were trained by Felix Frankfurter for a real civil service. There is an equal contempt for the American system, which produces excellent service, but poor administration. The New Deal pressed the President, arguing that personnel was one of the great unsolved problems of his regime. And he appointed his committee accordingly, and asked for an early report.

Besides Reed and Frankfurter, other committee members are Attorney General Frank Murphy, who earned the hatred of the Michigan Democratic organization by enforcing civil service there; William H. McReynolds, administrative assistant to the secretary of the treasury, one of the rare first-class products of the American civil service system, with a life ambition to see the system improved; General Robert E. Wood, of Sears-Roebuck; the well-known engineer, Gano Dunn, and a shrewd former Republican member of the Federal Civil Service Commission, Leonard White.

All of these men can be trusted to give their best. Every one of them is expert in the problem and deeply interested. If they cannot evolve a plan to put first-class minds at the disposition of the government, the nation will not cry.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

Perhaps he is a nuisance,
But he's a nuisance of a flea
Are just as vile to me,
To him, as mine to me.

Continued,

From Yesterday.

In this column, yesterday, there was description of a press conference at the White House, you remember? Today there are some further observations on the same incident.

After the crowd of correspondents had left, I signaled to wait. In a few minutes Secretary Steve Early introduced me to the President and we talked for some minutes. Off the record, of course.

But I was impressed with the change in the President's appearance since the last time it was my fortune to talk with him. That was at Warm Springs, some five years ago or so.

He looks well, there can be no disputing. But he has aged quite a lot in appearance, in those five years. And something has happened to that famous smile.

It is still there, still as cordial and beaming as ever. But it is, in an odd sort of way, not the smile as of old.

More
Conscious.
It is a little difficult to put into words the change, for it is almost intangible. Perhaps it may best be described as a smile not quite so unconscious, so natural, as it used to be. I suppose this is in evidence, for that smile has been so much publicized.

It is a little on the mechanical side, today. As though the President is conscious of it, and its effect. As though he turns it on and wipes it off his features, at will, consciously. A little bit, if you get the idea, in the same way that an actor mechanically assumes the smile called for by his role, at the moment he steps out from the wings into the view of the audience.

The old charm is still there. His very personality can still win you over to his view on a question by the very power of the man's attractiveness. But you are, today, conscious of that charm, as a definite, watched-for asset. Five years ago the charm worked upon you without realization, or any sense that it was being exerted. That's the difference.

The Georgia Delegation.
Incidentally, Georgians should be proud of the 12 men who today represent our state before Congress. After talking with senators and representatives from a lot of states, there is one point which sticks out, impressively and with full sense of sincerity. They all have a heap of respect for the Georgia delegation.

Senator George is probably one of the most highly respected men on that side of the capitol. His opinion is sought by everyone and there is full appreciation of his high abilities as a statesman, and his high character as a man.

Senator Russell has not taken much part in senate debates, except on a few topics. He says he hesitates to talk on any subject unless he feels he knows it thoroughly. He has a sensitiveness about airing his views on a subject that some other senator may be more familiar with. That is understandable. But they all like him and he is building, for himself, a solid reputation and making a very firm foundation for future service.

Ireland's Coins.
Instead of dignifying their new coins with engravings of political heroes, the Irish make them gay with pictures of pigs, hens, plants, and other farm produce.

Gossipers.
The Rev. W. Grainger White, vicar of Haughey, Eng. parish, has organized an antigossip squad to track and report to him on scandal mongers' activities.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Reader Help NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—I wonder if any readers can help me out on this.

It is about a wistaria which is a sort of vine that has pale-purple flowers, something like lilacs, if all goes well.

Well, at the time we got it this one was supposed to be seven years old—which is the age of consent, as you might say, with wistarias in our part of the country, although in some parts of the south, where all things mature earlier, the age is as low as two and a seven-year-old wistaria is practically an old maid.

The man said it probably would bloom that year and if not, a diet, which he left at a small extra cost, and keep the earth nice and loose, which was done. Three years passed and without being in any way unpleasant about it we thought that, well, after all, how about some wistaria blossoms?

About that time a man came along one day who claimed to be an expert on such things, and he took a look and said, "that wistaria is running too much leaf. Does it bloom?"

This opened the subject, and he examined it, felt it of it here and there and said it was a great big, healthy wistaria and ought to produce fine, upstanding blossoms, and when had it been bred?

Bred? Yes, bred. Did he mean like horses and cows and all such farm stock?

Fee is $5. Sure, he meant that. How else did anyone s.t.p. pose they had little wistarias? Bred them in the fall and they foal, or whatever you would say, in the spring, and, moreover, he had a fine stud wistaria at his nursery and the fee would be $5, guaranteed.

This was repugnant, but there was no sense being priggish because, after all, it's just nature, and a hush-hush policy about sex may be just as dangerous as the other extreme. He said he had had excellent results all around the neighborhood, gave several names of customers whose wistarias had produced beautiful blossoms, and high-pressure $5. He came back a few days later, and I took a walk, preferring not to be present, but he said positively that long before June or so, next spring, we would have wistarias.

Not in an objectionable way, but casually and hopefully, the wistaria vine was watched next spring from the time the first leaves sprouted out. There was nothing so offensive in such things as the ogling, measuring eye, and we would just pass by nonchalantly or pause to look as at a bird's nest and sneak quick peeks, just to see if it always said nope, refusing to be misled by wishfulness, and as the summer wore on it turned out that I was right. Yet, we had no wistarias. So I called the man last fall, and he kept promising and promising to come back and assist in getting about that wistaria stallion or boar of his and its pedigree, which he claims has orchid ancestry in it.

Ground He talks about plant hormones and deficiency in a way that seems very learned, and how he is around to the point of suggesting that my wistaria first should have a pollen of something which he would jab into the roots with a needle. He is blaming my wistaria, insisting that this Casanova of his is irresistible to any normal vine of the opposite sex, and while he has not exactly run out on his guarantee, which went with the $5, he wants $2 more for this needling. "That scrawny old weed of yours is no du Barry, you know," he said. "In fact, it is part poison ivy, and if I had to do it over again I wouldn't want to take your business because it is bad for our reputation. We only breed to high-class, approved stock, but you seemed so disappointed that I did you a favor, and now it is getting around that we have a failure."

Well, he claims that this stud of his is practically the Man-o-War of wistaria, and I am in no position to argue because I never even knew there were such things in the plant world. I always thought geraniums just had geraniums, hollyhocks had hollyhocks and so forth, and I would appreciate it very much if anyone who knows would inform me whether this man is correct and whether it would be worth while to spend the $2 extra for his treatment.

Needling I have seen his Casanova vine, and it looks very ordinary to me, although it is quite possible that to most female wistarias it is a plant of irresistible beauty and charm.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

"HE'S A BATTLE AXE" It was raining outside, the rain slashing against the panes. A gentleman had just called and said that his cook had made the most humorous statement. He repeated it and insisted that it be sent on to the people who are producing "Gone With the Wind." He was very much afraid they would both the negro accent. He wanted this particularly bright saying included, somehow, in the scenario. I assured him that Miss Susan Myrick, of the Macon Telegraph, was on the scene, zealously guarding each slur "R" and each and every drawl. And that Miss Mitchell's book did the job well. He seemed unconvinced. His cook said such humorous things. They'd "make" the picture.

The rain kept splashing against the panes. I found myself thinking of Ichauway plantation and that hour after dinner when the negro field hands and those from the kennels and stables come in and sing.

No one knows how many poets there are chopping cotton in the fields of the south. No one knows how many minds build poetry out of commonplace things about the farms and the fields of Georgia. I remembered sitting one night before the big log fire at Ichauway with the nostalgic odor of wood smoke in the room, faint and familiar as another presence. They were singing a new spiritual, one built by the poets in the small churches of the community. I wondered how many preachers, educated at expensive schools, taught to interpret the Greek and the Latin, could better describe the strength and the protection of the Lord than those humble and unknown poets who sang the refrain and the oft-repeated "motif," so to speak, which was:

A mighty shelter, yes, a battle axe in time of war;
The Old Testament version of the Lord came out in that song, the God of battle and the God of protection and of mercy. There were many verses. Amazing "lines" were in them.
"He shot at the Devil with prayer!"
And finally, one of sheer poetry—
"He stood on the moon, clothed in the fire of the sun."
Many a praise sitting before his paper or his typewriter, has sought for months for a line not half so good.

EMORY'S "TEAM" TRAVELS In the midst of this came an envelope about the Emory Glee Club. It is away on a trip which will take it into 11 southern cities. It has done much to develop Georgia "spirituals."

A fine old football reporter, grown somewhat weary of the alumni who fire football coaches, and who have displayed such impossible attitudes toward what is a very fine game, I wondered, as I have wondered before, as to certain values.

The football teams go forth each week in the season. They are surrounded by a certain amount of hysteria, emotion and certain other sociological and at times, semi-pathological features. This, of course, in companionship with much that is fine and good. Nevertheless, I wondered if perhaps Emory University and her alumni are not getting more from the glee club.

It twice has appeared in European capitals, on the continent and in England. It appeared for two weeks at London's Coliseum, the world's largest playhouse. The nobility of Europe acclaimed it. It has appeared in concerts over the United States with singers of the Metropolitan as guest singers. It has won extravagant praise when they sang "cute" songs. It has no blues or jazz singers. It carries no fond-stomping of the world. Its program of negro spirituals is a magnificent one. It sings the difficult choruses of Wagner or the refrains of Herbert. For more than two decades it has made a steady progress in fame and ability. Its reputation truly is international.

WHAT ARE THE VALUES? And so, one wonders as to the value of concrete and steel. It does not subject its members to the emotions of "fire-the-coach" alumni. Some football teams have given to their universities much glory and fame. But it is to be doubted if a single one of them ever pushed its fame into the far stretches of the world or won the acclaim of thousands in many lands.

It is just possible that Emory University has received more from her glee club in its years of "going on trips" than have all the universities received from teams which have gone on trips to the Rose Bowl.

There are no debts of great size about the glee club. No harassed manager must think of stadium bonds or loans at the bank. There are no alumni who send in scholarship students and who become angry when they do not make the team.

As an old football reporter, I just wonder.
Emory has an intra-mural system of athletics. I suppose it works about as do the same systems elsewhere. Those who like exercise receive benefit from it. Those who don't care for exercise don't. Emory does not have intercollegiate athletics. Her "teams" are teams of debaters and musicians. You must decide about the respective values.

I am not quite sure how this started out with rain on the windows and a call about "Gone With the Wind" and wound up with the Emory glee club, but there seemed some coherence as it went along.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

My dear Louise:
It doesn't matter what you have heard, nor how many other people believe her guilty, nor how suspicious the circumstances seem. So far as you know, she is wholly innocent and it is wrong and mean to think her guilty, and repeat the story as though it were true, when you have no shred of evidence to condemn her.

Of all the unlovely traits possessed by our imperfect breed, the least respectable is our ungenerous delight in the downfall of our neighbors.

Envy is doubtless at the root of it. We unwittingly look upon all of our acquaintances as competitors for the world's favor and good opinion. Praise for one of them seems by comparison a criticism of us. The higher they climb, the lower we are by contrast. As their success accents our failure, so their sins accent our virtue. Thus we have a double reason to rejoice in their downfall. It removes them as competitors and calls attention to our righteousness.

When a self-righteous little snob cries: "Willie is cheating!", he means to say: "I am not cheating." His treachery to Willie is praise for himself.

It is our nature and practice to believe what we wish to believe and to do the thing that brings us profit.

Since the downfall of others makes us higher by comparison, we wish to believe any charge against them well-founded and true. And since we wish to believe it, we do believe it. A new truth may be accepted slowly, but a new scandal is received with open arms.

I don't mean that we deliberately and consciously welcome the downfall of others as a benefit to ourselves. That would shame us. We wouldn't admit being that mean. But that is the way our minds work in secret.

That is our nature, but it doesn't follow that we must function that way. It is also our nature to take what we want, deceive others to benefit ourselves, and strike when we are offended, but civilized people learn to overcome natural things that are shameful.

We can overcome the tendency to believe evil, too. But we must work fast and suppress the first inclination to believe; for the moment we accept an idea, our vanity supports and defends it, since we cannot discard it later without confessing that we were wrong. Be generous, my dear. Poor frail humans suffer enough without being condemned when they aren't guilty. Love, DAD.

Romance Echoes in Senate

Legislative Bill Sought to Revive Clan of MacNabb, Change Name of Smith Boys of Newnan.

A romantic elopement of a century ago echoed yesterday in the state senate, where a bill to change the name of two of the Smith boys to MacNabb received approval.

The bill, introduced by Senator Walter D. Sanders, of Newnan, hides behind legal phraseology the real story of why George Malcom Smith, news editor of the Newnan Herald, and his brother, Herbert Watson Smith, steel company employee, want their surnames lawfully changed to MacNabb.

The story begins 100 years ago when a Scottish free-booter, Captain Malcom MacNabb by name, fell in love with a beautiful Irish lassie whose father was a prominent shipbuilder and loyal to the last inch to the Irish.

The shipbuilder objected strenuously to any connection of his family with a Scottish free-booter but daughter and Malcom MacNabb thought otherwise. Captain MacNabb married his sailboat, tucked daughter Margaret safely in, and away to America—the land of the free, they sailed.

But MacNabb's unwilling father-in-law wasn't so easily defeated. He climbed aboard a faster ship and rode over the waves to New York, reaching the port several days before Captain MacNabb's boat pulled in. The captain had friends there and they told him that a certain Irish gentleman was looking for him with a blunderbuss, or something. So, the captain changed his course and his name and headed for the Carolinas.

There, he and his bride became known as Mr. and Mrs. Malcom Smith, and through the years all their descendants too have borne the name of Smith.

Now, George Malcom and Herbert Watson Smith desire to revive the MacNabb clan and carry on in the spirit of the free-booter sea captain, who started a new generation of Smiths in America in an effort to show his papa-in-law off his trail.

Senator Sanders said he was assured the bill to MacNabb will pass in the house of representatives next week.

HARTSFIELD VETOES 2 SALARY INCREASES

$15 Monthly Additions for Dental Hygienist, West's Secretary Turned Down.

Proposed salary increases for two city hall employees were vetoed yesterday by Mayor Hartsfield.

Affected by the veto were Miss Collette Daniel, dental hygienist in the health department, and Miss Eunice Neal, secretary to Comptroller B. Graham West. Council approved $15-a-month raises for each Monday.

"I am informed these papers were not taken up by the finance committee in regular session but were passed around among the members during council meeting," the mayor said. "I don't think that is the way to raise salaries. It is unfair to the other employees."

The mayor previously had approved council's action in providing an electrician for the city auditorium at a salary of $190 per month and an additional lecturer for the cyclorama at a salary of $100 per month.

Georgia June Bugs Heading West For 'Gone With Wind' Atmosphere

First It Was Mud, and Then Pine Needles, and Then a 'Hawg,' and Now a Box of Insects for Vivien Leigh—Scarlet O'Hara.

BY CARY WILMER.
Georgia June bugs now have joined the strange procession heading west to help give an authentic southern atmosphere to the screen version of Margaret Mitchell's far-famed "Gone With the Wind."

First it was a slab of mud—so that the boots of the Confederate soldiers would have the proper color. Next it was a pine cone and some pine needles. Even a "hawg" was shipped across the continent and back for reasons unknown. And now it's June bugs.

Just what part—if any—they are to play in the production is shrouded in mystery. Equally as mysterious is the question of how anyone happened to have a supply of the so-called June bugs—in February.

But be that as it may, it is reasonably well established that a supply of the colorful, harmless insects soon will be traveling westward addressed to none other than Miss Vivien Leigh, who is now in the process of bringing Scarlett O'Hara to life and to the screen.

The whole proposition came more or less to light as the result of an inquiry telephoned to Mrs. Kathleen Hogan, official question answerer at the state capitol.

Someone, whose name was not divulged, had a supply of June bugs which they wanted to send Miss Leigh. Would there be any state regulations forbidding it? After a conference with the state entomology department, Mrs. Hogan found that it would be all right as far as Georgia was concerned but that the question of admission into California would have to be settled on the other end of the line.

She was thanked for her assistance and left definitely with the understanding that the supply of bugs soon would be "Gone With the Wind."

Other officers elected were Charles C. Stretch, who succeeded Mr. Coppedge as vice president and controller, and Charles W. Jameson, who was named chairman of the board of directors.

During his tenure as district manager here, Mr. Coppedge was responsible for establishing several new stores of the McCrory chain in Atlanta and other cities in the south.

than when we first initiated a congressional drive earlier this session," Mr. Ramspeck said. "The hearings are going to open the eyes of the public at large to present day discrimination in freight rates and when we get the people educated I anticipate no serious opposition to our claim for fairer and more equitable treatment in transportation rates for our shippers."

John Wilkes Booth thought Lincoln the arch-enemy of the south, and assassinated him. The drama of Booth's deed and of his subsequent flight and death has been caught in thrilling measure by Philip Van Doren Stern in his just published "The Man Who Killed Lincoln." Between all its lines is the tragedy of a south betrayed by its own would-be champion.

There would have been no such darkness of Reconstruction if Lincoln had lived. The war's end found him already at odds with those who wanted to take bitter revenge upon the south, impose arbitrary and uncomprehending reforms upon it. That these joint enemies of Lincoln and the south were involved in Booth's plot (without Booth's knowledge) is the implication in certain facts hinted by Mr. Stern and startlingly documented in Otto Eisenschiml's "Why Was Abraham Lincoln Murdered?" published a few years ago.

No one has made this point about Lincoln better than Woodrow Wilson, and we are indebted to Mr. J. Wallace MacGowan, of Penny Farms, Florida, for reminding us. What made Lincoln more American than a man like Andrew Jackson, according to Wilson, was that Lincoln had a heart to express not just one section or class of Americans but all of them.

"His eyes," wrote Woodrow Wilson of Abraham Lincoln, "as they looked toward more abroad, beheld the national life and comprehended it; and the lad who had been so rough cut a provincial became, when grown to manhood, the one leader in all the nation who held the people singly in his heart—held even the southern people there, and would have won them back. And so we have in him what we may call the perfect development of native strength, the rounding out and nationalization of the provincial. Andrew Jackson was a type, not of the nation, but of the west. For all the tenderness there was in the stormy heart of the masterful man, and staunch and simple loyalty to all who loved him, he learned nothing in the east; kept always the flavor of the rough school in which he had been bred; was never more than a frontier soldier and gentleman. Lincoln differed from Jackson by all the length of his unmatched capacity to learn. Jackson could understand only men of his own kind; Lincoln could understand men of all sorts and from every region of the land; seemed himself, indeed, to be all men by turns, as mood succeeded mood in his strong nature. Roy Coppedge, Who Started as Stock Boy, Is New President of McCrory's.

Roy F. Coppedge, formerly Atlanta district manager of McCrory, Inc., has been elected president of the national chain of popular-priced department stores, according to an announcement made at New York headquarters of the organization.

Mr. Coppedge, who came to Atlanta in 1901 from Griffin, where he was born, joined the McCrory firm as a stock boy and rapidly rose to the position of district manager. In 1931, he was named assistant general manager and vice president and moved to New York, where he was placed in charge of purchasing for the 200 stores.

He succeeded Charles P. Green, who was named as chairman of the advisory committee of the company. Appointed to the position of merchandising manager in charge of all buying was Major George C. Chambers, formerly manager of the J. J. Newberry store here.

Other officers elected were Charles C. Stretch, who succeeded Mr. Coppedge as vice president and controller, and Charles W. Jameson, who was named chairman of the board of directors.

During his tenure as district manager here, Mr. Coppedge was responsible for establishing several new stores of the McCrory chain in Atlanta and other cities in the south.

LAST RITES TODAY FOR MIDDLEBROOKS

Services To Be Held at 2 O'Clock.

Funeral services for W. M. Middlebrooks, killed Thursday when struck by a train as he sat on a trestle near Conley, Ga., will be conducted at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Spring Hill.

The Rev. Irby Henderson and the Rev. Ralph L. Ramsey, will officiate and burial will be in West View cemetery under direction of H. M. Patterson & Sons.

A coroner's jury found that Middlebrooks, who was under a $1,000 bond in connection with the shooting of a half brother, Grover C. Middlebrooks, committed suicide.

than when we first initiated a congressional drive earlier this session," Mr. Ramspeck said. "The hearings are going to open the eyes of the public at large to present day discrimination in freight rates and when we get the people educated I anticipate no serious opposition to our claim for fairer and more equitable treatment in transportation rates for our shippers."

John Wilkes Booth thought Lincoln the arch-enemy of the south, and assassinated him. The drama of Booth's deed and of his subsequent flight and death has been caught in thrilling measure by Philip Van Doren Stern in his just published "The Man Who Killed Lincoln." Between all its lines is the tragedy of a south betrayed by its own would-be champion.

There would have been no such darkness of Reconstruction if Lincoln had lived. The war's end found him already at odds with those who wanted to take bitter revenge upon the south, impose arbitrary and uncomprehending reforms upon it. That these joint enemies of Lincoln and the south were involved in Booth's plot (without Booth's knowledge) is the implication in certain facts hinted by Mr. Stern and startlingly documented in Otto Eisenschiml's "Why Was Abraham Lincoln Murdered?" published a few years ago.

No one has made this point about Lincoln better than Woodrow Wilson, and we are indebted to Mr. J. Wallace MacGowan, of Penny Farms, Florida, for reminding us. What made Lincoln more American than a man like Andrew Jackson, according to Wilson, was that Lincoln had a heart to express not just one section or class of Americans but all of them.

"His eyes," wrote Woodrow Wilson of Abraham Lincoln, "as they looked toward more abroad, beheld the national life and comprehended it; and the lad who had been so rough cut a provincial became, when grown to manhood, the one leader in all the nation who held the people singly in his heart—held even the southern people there, and would have won them back. And so we have in him what we may call the perfect development of native strength, the rounding out and nationalization of the provincial. Andrew Jackson was a type, not of the nation, but of the west. For all the tenderness there was in the stormy heart of the masterful man, and staunch and simple loyalty to all who loved him, he learned nothing in the east; kept always the flavor of the rough school in which he had been bred; was never more than a frontier soldier and gentleman. Lincoln differed from Jackson by all the length of his unmatched capacity to learn. Jackson could understand only men of his own kind; Lincoln could understand men of all sorts and from every region of the land; seemed himself, indeed, to be all men by turns, as mood succeeded mood in his strong nature. MISS WOODWARD APPEALS FOR FIGHT ON FAILURE OF RESOURCES.

League of Voters.

"Poor soil, poor houses, poor people—the three go together, and they make for disease, poverty, hunger, crime and, according to one authority, insanity," declared Miss Emily Woodward, Georgia journalist, in a forum lecture here today under auspices of the League of Voters.

"It has been declared," Miss Woodward said, "that there is a definite and direct relationship between eroded, unproductive soil and insanity. There are more than 7,000 inmates in the Georgia State Hospital for the Insane at Milledgeville, and it is reported that most of the patients come from areas where the top soil has been lost and the ground will produce only in a meager way."

"With health conditions responsible in a large part for crime and insanity," she continued, "I think we are using poor judgment in not spending out money for prevention instead of so much to look after people after they have become criminals or insane. We must teach the people how to care for their bodies."

That startled the people inside, for they well remembered this lame beggar. They were about to attribute the credit for his miracle to Peter, but he stopped them, declaring that it was in the Name of Jesus, "Whom ye crucified."

Whom God raised from the dead, even in Him doth this man stand here before you whole." And then Peter preached to the great throng that gathered, having heard of this miracle.

As he preached, the Sadducees took counsel among themselves what they should do about one who was preaching the resurrection and gaining the attention of the people. They cast Peter and John into prison. The next morning they haled them before the Sanhedrin for trial. There Peter made his great declaration, Acts 4:8, 12. I cannot quote the entire passage for lack of space, but I urge you to read it. It must be acknowledged as one of the greatest Christian declarations of all time.

Puzzled, and I think afraid, the Sadducees, and we may well add the Pharisees, "took knowledge of them (Peter and John) that they had been with Jesus." And they could say nothing. There was the healed man. It was a notable miracle. They could not deny it. And so, they sought to threaten Peter and John, they released them; but Peter, sustained by the Holy Spirit, had the last word. He said, "We cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard."

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

Sunday's lesson, Acts third and fourth chapters, brings us to another of the great days in the life and work of Peter—a day featured by a miracle, by his great sermon from Solomon's porch with "about 5,000 men believing," by the imprisonment of Peter and John, and the climax of it all coming in the great declaration of Peter to the Sanhedrin the following morning, following which, Peter and John were released.

Just how long it was from pentecost until this event at the gate of the temple, we cannot surely say, but probably within a few days. Peter and John were entering the temple at the afternoon hour of prayer, which would be 3 o'clock. Mind you, these Christian Jews were still attending the temple worship. A crippled beggar, lame from his birth, spoke to them as they were entering the gate, asking alms of them. Peter answered, "Silver and gold have I none; but what I have, that give I thee." And then Peter took him by the hand, and said, "In the Name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, walk—start walking."

The man leaped up and began walking, and went on into the temple with them, praising God. That startled the people inside, for they well remembered this lame beggar. They were about to attribute the credit for his miracle to Peter, but he stopped them, declaring that it was in the Name of Jesus, "Whom ye crucified."

Auburn Cage Team Defeats University of Georgia, 34 to 29

PONCE DE LEON INLET, Fla., Feb. 10.—Here where the blue waters of the Halifax merge with the green and blue of the rolling Atlantic, some of the local boys engage in a quaint and somewhat dangerous sport.

Crabbing, in the ordinary sense, is not much sport. You put some bait on a hook and haul the crabs in, one by one. But stone crabbing is something else. It is, I insist, almost comparable with a fellow going after a shark in his native element armed only with a knife and a lot of old-fashioned fortitude.

The boys wade along the shore up to their waist looking for the crab holes in the banks. When they spot one, they go to work.

Some use a bit of protection, such as a shell. They will plunge in over their heads, if necessary, and ram an arm up to the shoulder in the crab's residence. If it shows resistance, they will let the big hard-shelled crustacean nab the shell with its claws. They then slip a hand around its back and haul it out of the hole.

These big crabs have powerful claws. So powerful, in fact, that they will take off fingers or part of a hand. And yet many of the boys never bother about the shell. It's really an art and is a unique industry. They don't come as high now, but back in the old days a dozen of the crabs retailed for as high as $1.

Since that is only a bit less than the tenth part of a dollar apiece, it is easy to see that the boys earned their mazuma. Each time they disturb a crab's happy home, they are liable to pull back a nub.

I enjoy watching it. There is something intriguing about it. But as yet I have been content to drop a baited hook and pull out the soft-shell variety. Stone crabbing is a lot like the ice skating back out in California—great sport to watch.

As Miss Janice says, it is about time to go put a hook on a fish.

IN THE NICK OF TIME.

A fellow almost lost his life stone crabbing here a couple of years ago. This fellow had run his hand in the hole and the crab was turned sideways. His hand jammed. And the tide was coming in.

His head barely was out of water, with the waves lapping at his chin. He struggled manfully to liberate his hand, but it was wedged. He really was in a pickle, as Amos says.

Not a soul in the party was in sight, and with a strength born of desperation, he finally worked the crab around and yanked it out as the water tickled his nose.

He then had a little problem of persuading the crab to release his hand. This he did by hesitatingly parting with a portion of epidermis.

Oh, yes, stone crabbing is great sport. But I'll still take mine on a hook and line.

THE SPANIARDS CAME THIS WAY.

Ponce de Leon and his Spanish adventurers came this way. They sailed their ships through the inlet and continued on to historic St. Augustine—in search of the fabled fountain of youth.

They advertise the fountain of youth at St. Augustine today. But it tastes as any sulphur water does. Only those who have been raised on it find it very palatable. Fountain of youth water grows rather old on any others.

It is at St. Augustine that Fort Marion, the old Spanish fort, still stands. It was there that an Indian chief probably introduced fasting for the first time in this country.

The Spaniards put this rather plump chieftain in a cell and he refused food. I do not recall how many days this went on, but one dark and stormy night the Indian chieftain worked his thin body between the bars and made good his escape.

That story seems very interesting because it really has no moral. Cococoochee was the Indian and he showed no particular brilliance once on the outside. He pilfered one of the Spanish mules when he could have gotten away faster afoot.

NATIVE PRIDE, OF COURSE.

Whoever named the inlet in the first place either knew nothing of history or was a man of reality. He called it Mosquito inlet. And it remained under that name until the international speed races began spreading the fame of the beach to the far corners of the earth.

Either a historian with a lot of local pride, or the Chamber of Commerce, shuddering at the thought of news reports saying, "Sir Malcolm Campbell steered his huge juggernaut around on the shores of Mosquito inlet," changed the name to Ponce de Leon inlet.

Ponce de Leon long since has gone to his reward but the mosquitoes are still here, in certain seasons. And they certainly

Johnny Chambers Moves Around; Slated for 'Nooga Berth.

By TOM McRAE.

John Reed once did a story entitled "The Peripatetic Prince" and this piece could be called "The Peripatetic Pitcher."

Though he has been in professional baseball only six seasons, Johnny Chambers, former Tech High moundsman, has played in every section of the country—Brooklyn, in the east, Knoxville in the south, St. Louis in the mid-west, Houston in the southwest, and Sacramento in the far west.

His travels in pro ball have also taken him to Hagerstown, Md.; Evansville, Ind.; Huntington, W. Va.; Greensboro, N. C., and Columbus, Ohio.

Last season Johnny started with the Cards, was sent to their Columbus farm, then bought by the Dodgers and sent to Minneapolis.

Chambers yesterday revealed another example of the Dodgers' unexcelled daffiness. Several weeks ago he picked up a sports section and saw where the Brooklyn had sent him to Chattanooga in the Fred Sington deal. The Daffiness Boys, as yet, have sent him no official message to that effect.

The report must be true, for it appeared in a newspaper.

Johnny did not appear too enthusiastic over the prospects of toiling for the great Joe Engel. If the terms are right, he will sign with the Lookouts. He feels sure he can win without much trouble in this league.

The big Atlanta boy, now in the middle twenties, is fast getting into shape. He works out at the "Y" every day and referees between 12 and 15 basketball games a week. He weighs 200 now, 10 pounds above his usual playing weight.

Alabama-Fordham To Play in New York

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Feb. 10.—(AP)—The Alabama-Fordham football game scheduled for October 7 will be played in one of the three major league baseball parks at New York, Coach Frank Thomas said today after an option on Legion field, Birmingham, for the date, was allowed to lapse.

When the contest was first announced, it was planned to play it in Birmingham if two New York clubs were playing in the World Series.

Thomas said the game would be either at the Polo Grounds or Yankee stadium unless both the Giants and Yankees were in the series. In case both are pennant winners, the football game will be taken to Ebbets field, home of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

ALBANY LOSES.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Feb. 10.—Nehi's sharpshooters tasted the sweetness of revenge here Wednesday night by crashing through to a 37-to-27 victory over Coach Holt's great Albany Blue five. Albany walloped Nehi earlier in the season and the game was a return affair.

Carroll County Five Scoreless in 2 Tilts

CARROLLTON, Ga., Feb. 10. Here's one for the basketball record book!

A Carroll county team failed to score a single point in two consecutive games, playing eight quarters without once sinking a field goal or a foul shot. Oak Mountain lost an 8-to-0 decision to the Clem second team and then later came back to drop a 26-to-0 decision to Tallapoosa, records show. Despite the fact that they couldn't score the Oak Mountain boys were playing just as hard, and with just as much spirit, at the end of each game as when they started.

MAROON COACH TO HAVE POWER

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Mississippi State's president, Dr. Duke Humphrey, says the school's new football coach will have free rein to hire and fire as he sees fit.

Dr. Humphrey outlined the situation last night in a speech to Memphis alumni of Mississippi State.

He said selection of a successor to Dr. Emerson (Spike) Nelson, recently resigned football coach, will be entirely in the hands of Dudy Noble, athletic director, whose "recommendations will be submitted to the athletic board for final approval."

Dr. Humphrey forecast that with better roads, firmer relationships with other schools and stronger powers for the head of the athletic department, Mississippi State will rise to the top of the Southeastern conference.

Georgia Makes Only 5 of 19 Free Throws

Morgan and Holmes Lead With 11 Points Each; Score Tied at Half.

AUBURN, Ala., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Auburn cashed in from the free throw line here tonight to turn back Georgia, 34-29. The Plainsmen made good 10 out of 18 foul shots while the best Georgia could do was five out of 19. Both teams made the same number of field goals—12.

Morgan and Holmes, Tiger forwards, shared point-making honors with 11 tallies each. Bulldog points were divided among Kelly, Killian and Chatham.

The Georgians lost the services of Don Kirkland, center, and Alex McCaskill, guard, both fouling out. It was the second straight loss broke five records last week-end.

Jackets Seek Fifth Conference Win Against Vandy Tonight

TECH TO FACE HARD CONTEST AT NASHVILLE

Junior Anderson to Forego Leg Operation Until After Season

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Fresh from their victory over the mighty Tigers of L. S. U., the Georgia Techs boarded a train last night for Nashville and a return game with Vanderbilt tonight.

The Jackets defeated the Commodores in the first game of the year in Atlanta by a six-point margin, but since that time Vandy has been one of the few teams to defeat Alabama and will be favored over the Techs.

Junior Anderson, star Jacket guard, who has played the last three games with a split bone in his shins, decided yesterday to wait until after the basketball season before having a leg operation. Coach Roy Munford left the decision entirely up to the big red-headed senior. After experts had examined the leg, they announced there was no danger of serious injury coming from playing on it. Despite the fact that his leg pains him while playing, Anderson decided to continue playing because an operation would remove him from the basketball picture.

The Jackets will be seeking their fifth conference victory and one which would put them well up into the league race. Coach Munford yesterday was undecided whether he would start Charlie Burroughs, sophomore who starred against L. S. U., in the place of Dillard Munford, regular starter.

Burroughs played a whale of a game against the Tigers but his ability to get points is not equal to that of Munford.

The following men are on the trip: Junior Anderson, George Smith, Walter Haymans, Charlie Burroughs, Jim Hughes, Morris Bryan, Jim Williams, Howard Burpo, Dillard Munford and Paul Sprayberry.

Galento Promises To Score Quick Kayo

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 10.—(P)—

Two-ton Tony Galento, the "Newark Nightstick," entrained for Florida at 2 p. m. today (on the Gulf Coast Limited), promising a quick knockout of Abe Feldman, of New York, in their 10-round boxing bout scheduled for February 22 at Miami.

Tony's wife and baby and his manager, Joe Jacobs, accompanied him. They will stay at a Miami Beach hotel (Palm Court).

ONE OF SHAMROCKS

This is Joe Hraha, former George Washington University star and one of the famous New York Shamrocks who play at Warren Arena Sunday afternoon. The Shamrocks claim the world title and are unbeaten in more than 60 games against the best in the nation.

THOMSON LEADS AT SAN ANTONIO

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Feb. 10.—

(P)—Siege Gun Jimmy Thomson's "home-run" tee shots wrecked the competitive course record with a seven-under-par 64 that left the field three strokes behind today in the opening round of the $5,000 Texas open tournament.

The handsome, bull-shouldered Shawnee-on-Delaware veteran racked up six birdies, an eagle, 11 pars and one bogie for his 34-30-64.

Two under par going into the 520-yard thirteenth hole, Thomson stunned his gallery by booming a tee shot into a sand trap approximately 400 yards down the fairway. He snacked a seven iron two feet from the can and rolled in his eagle three.

Silent Clayton Heafner, a Greensboro, N. C., boy out playing the first tournament golf of his life, rattled par by four strokes for a 67 that left him tied for second with Byron Nelson.

Harold (Jug) McQuaden, of Boston, who scored the incredible 59 in a practice round, was bracketed at 68 with E. J. Harrison, Little Rock, Ark. Seven were clustered at 69, including Leo Walper, Harold Lacey, of Little Rock; John Barnum, Edinburg, Texas, amateur; John Butler, of Chicago; Sammy Byrd, of Philadelphia; Marvin Stahl, of Lansing, Mich.; and Horton Smith, of Chicago. The 70 bracket held Frank Walsh, of Rumson, N. J., and Lawson Little, of San Francisco.

SHAMROCK FIVE TO BRING GREAT BUNCH OF STARS

Pros Unbeaten; Lauter's Team Is Strengthened for Sunday Game.

The start of the New York Shamrocks, the great pro team which invades Warren Arena Sunday afternoon, are not so well known to southern fans since this is the first invasion of Dixie by the world title claimants. However, in many sections of the country, the Shamrocks are better known than even the Celtics.

Winner of 60-odd games without a defeat, the New Yorkers will be heavily favored over a Warren team which has been strengthened by the addition of Red Pittman, big and rugged ex-Atlanta Cracker, who can get the ball off the boards and shoot it through the baskets.

Chief Rankin is one of the more colorful of the Shamrocks. He is a full-blooded Sioux Indian from Nebraska and a former Creighton College luminary.

Herb Fash started at St. Louis U. and is six feet three inches tall and weighs 205 pounds.

Joe Hraha, a pitcher who is the property of the St. Louis Browns, is a former George Washington U. ace.

Bud Shipper, the six-and-one-half foot center, is a clever pivot man with considerable experience in pro competition.

A 200-pounder from Oklahoma is Del Wade, who also is one of the greatest softball players in the country.

The Shamrocks will travel 27,000 miles this season, visiting 30 states and Canada to play 135 games. They have beaten Flint (Mich.) this year and Flint, divided two games with the Celtics.

Warren Reserves meet Bethel Athletic Club in the preliminary at 2:30 Sunday afternoon and the main games started at 3:30. Popular prices will be featured.

status of a wide-open affair, and the field may be much smaller when these prized colts parade out on the track in the last big race of their class before the running of the $50,000 added Santa Anita Derby February 22.

Named to race, however, if conditions suit, were: Yule o' Nine, Time Along, Impound, Our Mat, Sweet Nancy, Black Bun, Hysterical, Atavistic, Touch and Go, Morning Breeze, Bubbling Boy, Hy Camp, Race Riot, First Port, Teddy Kerry, Grey Nurse, and the one-two favorites, W. E. Boeing's Porter's Mite and Mrs. Ben Franzheim's Xalapa Clown.

Thirteen colts answered the bugle in the San Vicente last year, and the favored Sun Egret, carrying 125 pounds, won, with legal light, and Sir Raleigh third. Sun Egret promptly became one of the top choices for the ensuing $50,000 Derby, but ran third to Stagehand and Dauber. Porter's Mite was handed 126 pounds for tomorrow's race, with the Clown in at 120 and Our Mat, a non-Derby candidate, and Mrs. Frank Carraud's Time Alone next at 118 and 117.

The San Vicente is a seven-furlong race.

TAMULIS SIGNS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(P)—Vito Tamulis, southpaw pitcher from Boston way, signed a contract yesterday for service with the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1939 and the club announced he was already on his way to Hot Springs, Ark., for some preliminary conditioning.

70 Candidates Report For Tech Track Drill

About 70 candidates answered Coach George Griffin's call for the first Tech track practice yesterday but many more are expected to report by Monday.

There was little done on the first day because of the bad weather. After a few exercises the boys were dismissed. "We'll take things easy for a few days," Griffin said. "When the boys get in shape we'll settle down to serious work."

The Tech outlook is for a much better team than they had last year.

Daredevil Andy Ross In Show Here Today

Daredevil Andy Ross, of Pittsburgh, veteran auto race driver, will risk his life here this afternoon and Sunday afternoon in order that motorists may be assured of safer driving in the future.

As part of a safety movement, Ross, who has campaigned successfully in Indianapolis speedways, will risk his skull today. He will blow the tires of his car, both front and rear, while going at a high speed and then will run his machine into railroad ties, attempting to prove that when properly equipped, automobiles are safe under any conditions.

Ross will apply the brakes suddenly while going at a terrific speed. And will drive into, or over, sandbags.

His performance this afternoon, free to the public, will be staged on the hill where The Constitution held its last Soap Box Derby. The hill is located at South Boulevard, below Grant Park. Sunday's show will be held at the Municipal Airport.

Major Brewster and Captain Jack Mayo, of the state patrol, will view with particular interest these performances, as will Captain Jack Malcom, of the Atlanta traffic squad. Various safety committees are expected to be represented.

Quick, Henry.

A PAINFUL DISCOVERY.

A coastwise vessel was caught in a storm off the inlet a cigar's length or two several years ago and sunk. And it was here, above the wreckage, that the fish invariably would bite.

So it was painful indeed to have old Jesse report that time and the shifting sands have covered it up. Old Jesse is a negro guide of 70 summers and knows virtually every drop of water in the inlet.

But even as wise in the ways of fishing as is old Jesse, these are days when nothing hits a hook except the cagey catfish and the sinuous soft-shell crabs.

"Dey'll be bitin' tomorrow," Jesse insists, which proves he is a true Izaak Walton. Hope springs eternal in the fisherman's breast.

Ex-Pitt Star Named Aide At Florida

Walter Milligan, Freshman Coach at Pittsburgh, To Assist Cody.

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Feb. 10.—(P)—Walter Milligan, freshman football coach at Pittsburgh, was added today to the varsity staff at the University of Florida.

The 34-year-old former guard is the second of Jock Sutherland's aides to be hired by Florida. Harold Williams came here last week to take charge of the "Gator backfield."

Terms of the contract were not disclosed. Milligan will take over his new duties Monday.

Head Coach and Athletic Director Josh Cody said he was pleased.

Milligan and Williams were roommates during their freshman year at Pitt and played together on some of Sutherland's most powerful elevens.

Remaining out of school in 1928 because of illness in his family, Milligan returned in 1929 to serve as substitute to Ray Montgomery. He was a regular in 1930 and 1931 and rates as one of the fastest guards in Panther history. He never weighed more than 173 pounds.

In three years of varsity competition, Milligan played in only four losing games.

Returning as guard coach in 1934, he was named head freshman coach in the spring of 1935.

In the girls' game, Daley was the leading scorer, getting 19 points for the winning cause. Duncan led the losers with 13 markers.

Ganues, of Jasper, got 11 points and Stencil, of Dacula, got 12 points in the boys' game.

WEILAND DENIES SENIOR CIRCUIT OLD-MAN'S LOOP

Cardinal Lefty Blasts at Recent Remarks.

ORLANDO, Fla., Feb. 10.—(P) Tall Bob Weiland wants folks to know it'll be strictly a case of "Smile, stranger, when you say that," the next time he hears any cracks about the National being an "old man's league."

The St. Louis Cardinals' towering portender has been building up a head of steam on that touchy subject for a long time and some recent public remarks by Pitcher Jack Russell finally burst the boiler of "Kid" Weiland's patience.

It seems Russell, a former American tosser now toiling for Chicago's Cubs, said throwers who couldn't do so well in the American frequently developed into winners in the senior loop. He said American league batsmen were terribly "home-run conscious" and generally more robust than the National's stickmen.

"How do you like that?" fumed Weiland, also an American league alumnus. "Here's a guy that comes right out and bites the hand that feeds him. Imagine him saying that the National is an old man's league. Where does he get that stuff?"

"Bang!" went Mr. Weiland's No. 12's on the clubhouse floor as he hoisted his six-foot four-inch frame and indignantly stalked outdoors.

Let somebody say his own record illustrates Russell's point, Weiland continued as he walked.

During his eight years with Chicago, Boston, Cleveland and St. Louis in the American league Weiland won 21 games, lost 57 and had an earned run average of 4.80. In 1937 he went to the Cardinals and won 15 while losing 14. Last year he won 16 and lost 11 with a sixth-place club, his earned run average dropping to 3.58.

"Barring lack of control, I was every bit as good in the American league," Weiland explained. "I've lost most of that wildness through hard work and then, you know, it takes left-handers longer to come around than right-handers for some reason."

Cadets Win To Tie Tech High for Lead

Smithies Fall Before G. M. A., 33-18; Boys' High Beats Marist, 45-20.

Playing its best game of the season, G. M. A. Cadets defeated Tech High, 33 to 18, Friday night on the Henry Grady court to tie the Smithies for first place in the city prep basketball race.

Boys' High climbed definitely out of the cellar with a 45-to-20 victory over Marist College in a preliminary to the final double-header of the season.

Tech High and G. M. A. have a postponed game from the first round and all the other teams with the exception of Tech High have postponed games to be played.

BEST GAME.

Determined to wrest the lead from Tech High, G. M. A. fought its hardest and by far best game of the year. The Cadets guarded closer than ever before and held Jack Pounds, the league's leading scorer to six points, though a G. M. A. guard was forced out of the game on personal fouls in holding the Smithies.

Field goals were few and far between and it was five minutes before Monsees, the game's high scorer, broke through with a field goal to give G. M. A. a three-point lead after Clark had scored the first and his only point of the game.

So close was the guarding on both teams that G. M. A. was on the long end of a 6-to-4 score after 10 minutes of play. The Cadets increased their lead to 10 to 6 at the half.

Both teams played a more open game in the third period, shooting from long range for the most part and G. M. A. led, 20 to 13, going into the last 10 minutes.

MONSEES LEADS.

While his mates were keeping close guard on Pounds and Ammons, Monsees broke through to lead the scoring with 15 points, only three less than the entire Tech High team. Captain Finkbeiner was second with eight, while Anderson followed with three field goals.

Despite being closely guarded Pounds led Tech High's scoring with six points, followed by Ammons and Corbett with four each.

Boys' High also played one of its best games of the year to beat Marist and leave the cellar position to the Ivy Street Cadets.

The Purples took an early lead of 15 to 7 at the quarter and continued to increase the margin as the game progressed.

It was a rough-and-tumble game, several times some four or five players being spilled on the same play, each fighting for possession of the ball.

After piling up a 31-to-10 margin at the half Coach Dwight Keith used reserves during most of the second half.

Doyle and Deese, with 23 of the 45 points between them, led the attack for Boys' High, with Gentry's 8 points high for Marist.

THE LINEUPS: (6) Boys' HL: Davol (2), F. (7) Edelstein, Gentry (3), F. (8) Ammons, Wasson (1), C. (9) Deese, Lee (2), C. (10) Smith, Beatty (1), C. EXTRA PERIODS PLAYED BEFORE 'BAMA TRIUMPHS

Tennessee Trails 21-12 at Half; Brantner Gets 17 Points.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 10.—(P)—Alabama's Crimson Tide casters required three overtime periods tonight to defeat a fighting band of Tennessee Volunteers, 42 to 37.

Trailing at the half time, the Vols put on a burst of scoring that knotted the count at 27-27 just before the end of the regulation game. Each team registered two field goals in the first five-minute overtime period, the score-board reading 31-31.

In the second extra stanza, both teams again tossed in a pair of goals from the floor to deadlock the score at 35-35. Alabama's superior strength began to tell in the third and the Tide pulled ahead to 39-35 before Huffman found the range from the center of the floor for Tennessee's final tally. Three more foul shots boosted the Tide total to 42.

Brantner, fleet Tide forward, repeatedly charged in for crisp shots to pace the scoring with 17 points. Two notches back was Prather, sensational sophomore center. Logan, lanky forward, was the spark of the Vols' offensive, accounting for 14 markers.

Despite the scoring of these three players, the defensive play of both teams was the feature of the game. The Vols hawked Alabama so closely in the second half that the Tide quintet was able to register a lone field goal.

House Given 4 Per Cent Sales Tax Bill

Measure Estimated To Net $12,000,000 A Year; Regarded as Ultimate Aim of Rivers' Camp.

Administration leaders yesterday placed before the Georgia house of representatives a bill to levy a 4 per cent tax on retail sales, estimated to yield around $12,000,000 a year.

Signed by Representatives Harvey of Upson and Triplett of Polk, it was offered as an alternative to the 1 per cent gross income levy introduced yesterday, also under administration sponsorship.

Several legislators commented that it was their opinion the retail sales tax measure was the ultimate aim of the Rivers administration, seeking to finance state services now short approximately $8,500,000 a year.

Revenue from the retail sales tax would be divided equally between the public school teachers and payments to the Department of Public Welfare. The bill specifies that no part of the revenue may be used for administrative expenses in either department.

The only deduction permitted for this purpose is 5 per cent to go to the revenue department for finance collection and administration.

This strict allocation differs from the gross income tax measure which turns revenue into the general fund to be paid out on appropriations.

Would Use Tokens.

Sales taxes would be collected by tokens. Exemptions are provided for producer sales of farm products and livestock; bona fide interstate commerce; newspapers; fertilizer and containers for farm products used when these products are sold directly to the farmer; water when sent to consumers through mains; and ship chandlers' supplies sold in the state for coastwise and foreign maritime use.

Automobile sales would not be exempt.

Retailers would be charged with the responsibility of collecting the tax and remitting monthly to the department of revenue. The bill prohibits any merchant from absorbing the levy, or attempting to absorb it, or advertising that he will pay it. Violators would be subject to prosecution and fine.

The measure also carries a provision similar to that in the gross income bill that it shall not become effective until the general assembly has enacted the bill.

Governor signed into law bills repealing the state ad valorem tax and about 200 "nuisance" taxes. A fractional part of the ad valorem levy would be retained to raise $100,000 required to retire state bonds.

Governor Rivers has urged revision of the state tax system, particularly criticizing the ad valorem and "nuisance" levies.

Ad Valorem Levy.

Close on the introduction of the sales tax bill came a measure which would permit counties to take up the state ad valorem levy. Offered by Representative Bell, of Grady, and others, it would authorize counties to make ad valorem levies up to a maximum of 4 3/4 mills. The state now levies a five-mill tax and the remaining one-fourth mill would be turned into the state. The bill provides, however, that if the state levies more than one-fourth mill, the difference between that and five mills shall be left to the counties.

The house approved increase in pensions of Confederate veterans from $30 to $50 monthly. The increase does not affect widows' pensions. It goes to the senate.

A number of measures to allow the State Highway Board to add roads to the state mileage system were tabled when Representative W. H. Lovett, of Laurens, pointed out that present laws already permit this action by the highway department.

Representative Edwards, of Lowndes, won recognition for a bill to provide for the free inoculation of hogs against cholera. Edwards said his bill would be amended to provide the serum for farmers at cost.

To Speed Up Work.

Speaker Roy Harris tried to notice on the legislature it would be necessary to speed up work, beginning Monday.

He announced sessions for the house next week would run from 9 a. m. to 2 p. m. (central standard time). Thereafter, it was planned to stay in session from 9 a. m. until 5 or 6 p. m. daily, with one hour off for lunch.

Both the ways and means, and appropriations committees have been requested to meet each afternoon and night next week in order to prepare for the start of double sessions, Harris said.

He added he had asked for the economy investigators and the appropriations group to confer on possible savings.

The longer sessions will be necessary to clear up all business in time for automatic adjournment March 18, at midnight, he explained.

Other legislative business yesterday, briefly told:

Representative Jones, of Paulding county, proposed a tax of 10 per cent per gallon on soft drink syrups made within the state and a 15 per cent levy on syrups shipped into the state. It would tax bottle drinks of less than 16 ounces one-half cent, above 16 ounces one cent.

Representative Davis, of Coweta, introduced a bill for county distribution of automobile license plates, the counties receiving a 25-cent fee for the work.

Representative Grayson, of Chatham, proposed to prohibit state employment of non-residents and would make department heads subject to removal by the Governor or for violations.

A bill to prohibit advertisement or sale of merchandise at less than cost where there is intent to injure competition, deceive the purchaser or substantially lessen competition was offered by Representative Mankin, of Fulton; Jones, of Richmond, and Harvey, of Upson.

Second Twin Boy Born 120 Hours Later Than First

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 10.—(AP)—The McDonnell baby twins have arrived—the first one last Sunday morning—the other today.

A five-pound son was born this morning at a hospital to Mrs. Milo C. McDonnell, joining his four-pound brother, whose premature arrival 120 hours previously will mean a five-day span in their birthdays.

The excited papa, a bookkeeper, mopped his brow—despite the zero temperature outside—sighed "Whew" and sank into a chair with all records shattered for a father pacing the local maternity ward.

The babies, named James Charles and John Anthony, are the firstborn of the 32-year-old mother.

NEW TRIAL SOUGHT FOR 11 IN WPA QUIZ

New Mexico Jury Frees 14 in Scandal, Reaches No Verdict on Others.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Feb. 10.—(UP)—United States District Attorney Everett Grantham announced tonight that he would seek new trials at once for the 11 persons whose guilt or innocence in using their Works Progress Administration jobs for political purposes was not established by a federal court jury.

The jury acquitted 14 of the defendants but informed Judge Colin Neblett that it was unable to agree upon verdicts for the other 11, among whom was Stanley W. P. Miller, son-in-law of Senator Dennis Chavez and formerly Grantham's chief assistant district attorney.

Those acquitted included Mrs. Anita Tafaya, Senator Chavez's elderly sister, and Salomon Tafaya, a nephew. The others were minor project supervisors who, the government charged, were instrumental in "stealing from the poor and defrauding the laborer of his wage."

The defense contended that such charges were "political persecution."

CROP INSURANCE ON COTTON SOUGHT

Plan Offered To Utilize Part of 10,000,000-Bale Surplus in U. S.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Representative Fulmer (Democrat-South Carolina) proposed today extension of federal crop insurance to cotton as part of a program to utilize 10,000,000 bales of surplus now held under government loans.

He announced he would introduce a bill Monday to set aside 2,000,000 bales as a reserve for the insurance program. This cotton would be distributed to participating farmers whose crops were destroyed by natural causes, including insect infestation.

The loan cotton would be transferred to a reserve pool free of any obligation.

Fulmer said other legislation he was preparing for utilization of the 10,000,000-bale surplus included a proposal to impound 8,000,000 bales.

The impounded cotton would be used on a competitive basis with jute, an imported fibre, and other products, and new uses, Fulmer said.

Indiana Appropriates $10,000 To Fight Freight Rate Equality.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Rejecting an appeal from Governor Bailey, of Arkansas, Governor Townsend tonight signed a bill appropriating $10,000 to oppose efforts of southern chief executives to obtain lower freight rates for their shippers.

The measure, approved with little opposition in both houses, was recommended for enactment by Townsend in his message to Hoosier legislators delivered when the 6-day session opened January 5.

Governor Townsend has been active in his fight against reduced freight rates which he contended benefited southern manufacturers. The Indiana State Chamber of Commerce and various Indiana labor groups supported the bill.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Three Curtiss-Wright aviation corporations and three individual defendants were acquitted by a federal court jury tonight by conspiracy to sell and of the actual sale of four armed Condor bombing planes to the Bolivian government in violation of American neutrality.

PLAN TO SIDETRACK F. D. R. RELIEF PLEA

'No Mad Rush,' Says Committee Chairman, on $150,000,000 WPA Increase.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(UP)—Conservative Democrats on the house appropriations committee are planning to sidetrack immediate action on President Roosevelt's demand for restoration of $150,000,000 lopped from his $875,000,000 relief budget in favor of a study of a long-range, permanent program, it was learned tonight.

Committee Chairman Edward T. Taylor, Democrat, Colorado, is expected to pose the issue next week at a formal meeting of the deficiency subcommittee, which handles the relief problem. He has told some Democratic members privately that there is "no mad rush" on Mr. Roosevelt's request despite the fact the chief executive warned in a special message Tuesday that an "emergency" exists.

As a result it is believed the group will begin work on the relief "shake-up" program sponsored by Representative Clifton A. Woodrum, Democrat, Virginia, one of the leaders of the house economy bloc which forced through the cut on Mr. Roosevelt's request.

Woodrum's measure, applicable to the fiscal year 1940, would appropriate $1,120,000,000 for unemployment and direct relief, less than half the amount the President estimated would be necessary in his January budget message.

The bill also would abolish the Works Progress Administration, return administration of relief to the states, and impose heavy penalties for mixing politics and relief.

legislature for the payment of interest. We have saved about $5,500 by getting the money at the low rate."

A special appropriation bill allotting the $16,500 interest money was approved by the senate yesterday. It passed the house earlier in the week.

Co-ordination of economy, revenue and appropriations committee work will be sought at the meeting tomorrow night.

It was explained that economy recommendations would be considered in writing the appropriations bill, so that these economies could be effected by omitting appropriations for unwanted activities.

The state now lacks about $8,500,000 to finance all services attempted, but the economy investigators have proposed a number of eliminations and consolidations to effect savings in the future.

Personnel of the conference will include Rivers, Harris, Representative Henderson Lanham, of the house ways and means committee; Wilmer Lanier, of the economy committee; and all members of the latter committee; Vice Chairman James V. Carmichael, Cleveland Rees, Guy Connell and Joe Blackshear and Representative William H. Key, of Jasper county.

"We must get our various activities organized before we can proceed with the drawing of adequate revenue and appropriations measures," Key said, adding that the appropriations bill would be delayed until the conferees could reach a decision on procedure.

Probe Welfare Bureau.

At the same time Lanier announced the economy investigators would launch into a study of the welfare department next week and would take up the health department as quickly as possible.

Key said the appropriations committee intended to include the

Franco Moves 100,000 Men to Madrid Sector

Premier Negrin Returns to Spain, Locates Capital at Madrid; Date for Surrender Suggested.

LONDON, (Saturday) Feb. 11.—(UP)—The Exchange Telegraph Agency reported early today from Burgos that Generalissimo Franco had dispatched 100,000 insurgent troops to the Madrid front for a big-scale offensive against Cuenca.

Cuenca, one of the government's strongholds in central Spain, lies east of Madrid and its capture would drive a wedge between Madrid and the seaport of Valencia.

The 100,000 troops were said to have been sent to the Guadalquivir sector, north and east of Madrid.

FRENCH COMMUNISTS STIR UP REFUGEES
PERPIGNAN, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Feb. 10.—(UP)—The French ministry of interior tonight placed a ban on French Communists and other agitators alleged to be stirring up dissension and unrest among nearly 300,000 Spanish military and civilian refugees in concentration centers along the border.

The government reinforced guards around the camps after a brief clash with French Communists at the Argelès-Sur-Mer concentration center.

The Leftists allegedly sought to mobilize malcontents to a demonstration against any attempt to return them to Insurgent-held Spain.

It was revealed Insurgent agents were circulating through the Argelès, Elne and other concentration camps offering 50-franc bonuses and three days of rest to all refugee government soldiers willing to return to Catalonia and join Franco's armies.

Many of the destitute militiamen accepted the offers. Three hundred of them were reported to have crossed back into Spain at Le Perthus.

LOYALISTS RETURN CAPITAL TO MADRID
VALENCIA, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Premier Juan Negrin returned today to what is left of government Spain in a hazardous flight from France and announced tonight that the new Spanish government headquarters would be located in Madrid.

The premier, who had fled from Insurgent-controlled Catalonia, made the announcement after conferring with his still undefeated commander-in-chief, General Jose Miaja.

Both Negrin and Miaja said they intended to "fight to the end" from central Spain, including Madrid, Valencia and Alicante.

The government now has half a million soldiers defending largely agricultural territory. Its big munitions and industrial works in Catalonia have been lost.

Premier Negrin's announcement was accompanied by a blaze of newspaper exhortation urging constancy to the last against Generalissimo Franco. It removed the doubts of many here that the government was contemplating surrender.

Despite this pronouncement, however, observers at the French border predicted peace would come to Spain within a few days. A date—February 18—was suggested for the government's surrender.

ALL WORLD PAYS HOMAGE TO POPE

Vatican will represent Germany at the funeral and it is possible a special delegation will be appointed by Chancellor Hitler.

Reichsfuehrer Hitler, through his state secretary, Otto Meisner, expressed his personal condolences to the Papal Nuncio at Berlin and Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop extended sympathies on behalf of the German government.

Pope Pius' death occurred at a critical moment in relations between the Holy See and Italy's Fascist government.

Death silenced the Pope on the very day before he was expected to give new expression to the "bitter sorrow" he had professed for Fascism's conduct toward the church.

Tomorrow will be the tenth anniversary of the Lateran Accord of February 11, 1929, which ended a bitter, 59-year quarrel between the church and state and the voluntary imprisonment of the popes in the Vatican.

Pope Pius was to have received all the archbishops and bishops of Italy in an audience for which recent church history offers few precedents.

However, Premier Mussolini described the death of Pope Pius XI today as "a source of grief for the church and for the Italian nation."

He called the late pontiff "the Pope of the Conciliation" in a reference to the negotiation of the Lateran Accord healing the breach between the church and state.

Rulers of Catholic World After Pope's Death

These men—the highest ranking four in the Catholic College of Cardinals—are leading the activities of the Vatican and the Catholic world until the election of a new Pope, following the death of Pius XI. They are, left to right, at top, Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state; Cardinal O'Connell, of Boston, Mass.; bottom, Genaro Granito di Belmonte and Camillo Caccia Dominioni.

which was signed 10 years ago tomorrow.

The premier's sentiments were expressed in a telegram to Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli which said: "The death of the Pope of the Conciliation is a source of grief for the church and for the Italian nation. As the interpreter of the sentiments of the Italian people, I express to your very reverend eminence and to the sacred college the sympathy felt by the Fascist government and my own personal sympathy."

King Vittorio Emanuele ordered court mourning for eight days.

Count Galeazzo Ciano, foreign minister, was chosen to represent the Fascist government in paying tribute to the late pope.

The government ordered flags of all public buildings placed at half staff until the day of the funeral.

In France, news of the Holy Father's death in his Vatican palace, caused profound sorrow among the nation's predominantly Catholic population. Special masses were ordered immediately in all parishes.

Worshippers thronged to the great cathedral of the Westminster Arch-diocese in London and preparations were made for a requiem mass there. England's only member of the College of Cardinals, Arthur Cardinal Hinsley, who called Pope Pius "one of the church's greatest popes," arranged to go to Rome to attend the funeral and participate in the election of a new pope.

Nazi Comment Tempered
Germany recalled the Pontiff's criticism of some aspects of Nazism, but most papers, obeying instructions to write of the Pope with the respect due his office and person, tempered their comment.

An exception was Der Angriff, organ of Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels. It headed its obituary "Pope of unfulfilled hopes" and said he had died as "a political adventurer."

Generalissimo Francisco Franco, whose Insurgent government restored the Catholic church as the official state religion in the three-quarters of Spain it rules, ordered flags at half staff and sent a message of sorrow to the Vatican.

Although Insurgent Spain heard of the Pope's death at its moment of greatest triumph, officials at its capital, Burgos, said a period of mourning would be ordered.

France's devoutly Catholic Navarrese troops, nevertheless, completed their conquest of Catalonia and leaders said there would be no halt in military operations.

In Madrid, principal city of government Spain, all four newspapers carried news of the death, but public reaction was scarcely observable. "Informaciones" was the only Madrid newspaper to comment editorially, saying, "Mussolini will do his utmost to get the conclave to elect a pro-Fascist cardinal as the new Pope."

In Soviet Russia the first news of the Pope's death was given to er the death of a pope for convening the cardinals was ordered by the late Pope in 1922 after the dean of the American cardinals, William Cardinal O'Connell, of Boston, protested following upon the death of Pope Benedict XV against the 10-day interval then in effect.

Meeting in the Sistine chapel and taking only two votes a day, the cardinals will ballot until someone—traditionally one of the cardinals—receives a two-thirds majority.

Soon after his election, the new pope will be handed the fisherman's ring, symbol of papal authority and of the end of the widowhood of the church.

The ring which Pope Pius XI wore was taken from his hand this morning and given to Cardinal Pacelli. The ring will be broken and the seal in a new ring will be handed to the new pontiff by the camerlengo to show that the temporary sovereignty of the sacred college has ended.

Speculation on which cardinal most likely would receive the required votes from his co-principles of the church centered upon Alfred Ildefonso Cardinal Schuster, archbishop of Milan, and Adeodato Giovanni Cardinal Piazzi, patriarch of Venice. But the possibility of a surprise election was not excluded.

There are 35 Italians among the 62 cardinals and it was expected an Italian would be elected to succeed Pius XI.

Nine Funeral Services.
The first of nine daily funeral services in St. Peter's for the late pontiff will begin Sunday, ending five days after his burial in the Chapel of the Popes in the crypt of the cathedral.

Observing the Romano, Vatican City newspaper, said today Pius XI gave his health in a struggle for peace and it expressed the hope the sacrifice might be effective even after his death on the eve of the anniversary of the reconquest of the church and state in the Lateran accord.

Recalling that the Pontiff had offered his life for peace, the newspaper asked: "Did the Lord then accept the sacrifice at the dawn of a great day?"

In the tremendous anguish of this hour, among the dolorous trials of the church, in the midst of so much tumult of ideas and passions, in the face of threatening rumblings of sinister things, at the eve of an uncertain tomorrow, humankind must believe so in order to be faithful in its devotion to the mysterious designs of Providence."

Secret Manuscript.
But what the Pope himself intended to say to the Italian bishops he had called to Vatican City for the peace anniversary tomorrow may never be known.

The cardinals in a meeting tomorrow will decide whether to make public the manuscript for the anniversary address, preparation of which cost the pontiff so much exertion.

The Lateran accord of February 11, 1929, ended a bitter, 59-year quarrel between the church and state, but last year a new rift appeared with the enunciation of the new Fascist racial policy.

In his Christmas Eve message to the cardinals, the Pope spoke of an "offense and wounds inflicted on our concordat" by marriage provisions and racial laws.

Donna Camilla Ratti, sister of His Holiness, who saw him in death this morning, was the most grief-stricken of all who knew him. Led into the death chamber by a secretary, she fell to her knees, sobbing, praying and kissing her brother's hands and feet until she was led away.

Ceremonial Rites.
When the heart of the 81-year-old Holy Father, weakened by long illness, ceased to beat at 5:31 a. m. (10:30 p. m., Atlanta time, Thursday), he began ceremonial rites and procedures that are centuries old.

While his body was washed in perfumed water and prepared for embalming, Cardinal Pacelli, who has directed the foreign affairs of the Vatican for eight years, took charge of the funeral activities.

Three cardinals were named to assist Pacelli, including William Cardinal O'Connell, archbishop of Boston and dean of the College of Cardinals, who is at Nassau in the Bahamas.

The others are Genaro Granito di Belmonte, dean of the Order of Bishops, and Camillo Cardinal Caccia Dominioni, dean of the Order of Deacons.

Cardinal O'Connell became senior cardinal-prince on December 24 upon the death of Cardinal De Smedt of Germany.

In conducting these activities, they will be assisted by the entire College of Cardinals. The cardinals will meet tomorrow in their first general congregation to dispose of Vatican business.

Comes now in Rome.
The cardinals now in Rome number about 40 of the 62 in the college. Vatican affairs will be supervised through a series of "congregazioni" or committees of four cardinals, three of whom will take turns according to seniority.

Cardinal Pacelli as camerlengo is the guiding member of each successive committee.

Arelio Mistruzzi, sculptor, was summoned to make a mask of the Pope before the body was embalmed.

been Italian, their selection having frequently been from among the archbishops of the more important Italian sees.

While the American cardinals sadly made haste to embark, and while the supplications of the faithful rose endlessly in the gloom of thousands of churches across the face of the nation, eminent men and women—Catholic, Protestant, Jew and non-religious—spoke out with almost one thought—

"Just when we needed him most."

An international broadcast of prayer from New York, originally scheduled to celebrate the 17th anniversary of the coronation of the Pope Sunday will become a memorial service instead.

The Rev. Dominic Dolan, pastor of the Church of St. Vincent Ferrer, who arranged for the broadcast from 2 to 2:30 p. m. (Atlanta time) to pray for the Pope's intentions for world peace and faith, announced today the rosary would be said for the repose of His Holiness' soul.

Shave and a Haircut—
Barber Shaved of $1.50
GOLDSBORO, N. C., Feb. 10.—(AP)—A customer walked into a barber shop, gingerly set down a big box and ordered the works. The bill was $1.50.

Explaining he had left his money at a hotel, the stranger told Barber E. A. Thornton to "keep that box there until I get back."

When he did not return after several hours, Thornton called a policeman who opened the box. It was filled with newspapers. Wrapped in their center was a brick.

concerning personal and private property could not be ascertained at the Vatican. Some sources said they understood he had disposed of all of his private possessions while still alive.

Pacelli's First Act.
Cardinal Pacelli's first act on assuming his duties as temporary administrator of the church was to go to the papal apartments on the third floor of the Vatican palace.

Escorted by Swiss guards and followed by the pontifical camera, or treasury body, he entered the room where the Pope's body lay and officially identified it for notarial registration of the death.

Then, with the same procession, the cardinal returned to his apartments.

Outside Vatican City, Rome went into mourning as deep as that within the Pontiff's temporal realm.

Flags drooped at half staff throughout the city.

King Vittorio Emanuele ordered court mourning for eight days.

All public places of entertainment were closed; schools suspended classes for the day and will do so again on the day of the Pope's burial.

Faithful prayed before portraits of His Holiness in their apartments.

Crowds gathered in the chill, damp haze in St. Peter's square.

Within the great cathedral, the red coverings which had been placed on pillars for next Sunday's intended coronation of the 17th anniversary of Pius' coronation were taken down and mourning draperies put up.

Stream of Mourners.
Mourners moved in a steady stream into the cathedral to kneel in prayer while low masses were said in various chapels.

The crowd in the square swelled to greater proportions as princes and diplomats and other dignitaries arrived for the procession in which the Pontiff's body was borne to the Sistine chapel.

The procession formed at 4 p. m. (9 a. m. Atlanta time) and it took 45 minutes to reach the chapel from the papal apartments.

The only member of the Holy Father's family in the cortege of guards and lay and ecclesiastical dignitaries was his nephew, Count Franco Ratti.

Crown Prince Umberto represented the Holy Father, while Premier Mussolini was represented by his son-in-law, Count Galeazzo Ciano, foreign minister.

After four large candlesticks with lighted candles had been placed around the bier and guards took their stations at each side, Monsignor Boncompagni, the Pope's sacristan, imparted a benediction.

Sprinkle Holy Water.
Then came the cardinals, each sprinkling holy water on the body and then kneeling and praying before retiring.

The diplomatic corps then was admitted.

Each of the dignitaries allowed to pass the bier genuflected and moved on.

The candles threw their flickering light on the tired and sunken face of the Pastor who had guided his flock of 351,500,000 for so many years.

At 6 p. m., Monsignor Arborio di Sant'Elia, master of the papal chamber, gave the signal and the hall was closed to further mourners.

The noble guards began their guard of honor, eight at a time, which will last throughout the night.

Then, at 9:30 a. m., tomorrow the body will be borne into St. Peter's to lie in state for veneration of the public.

It seemed to persons within the vatican and without that many scarcely could comprehend that the pontiff was dead, as he had resisted illness for so long.

Doctors said that every day for a week, with his mind on the planned celebration of his coronation anniversary next Sunday, his holiness had said: "We will do it Sunday! We will!"

PAPACY HISTORY DESCRIBES COLORFUL AND STRONG MEN

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Outstanding popes: St. Peter: First pope, reigned from 12 A. D. to 67 A. D.

Gregory VII: St. Gregory of Hildebrand, reigned from June 29, 1073 to August 1, 1085. He made his enemy, the Emperor Henry IV, stand in the snow at Canossa for three days demanding entrance to the papal residence, as a penance. He enforced celibacy on priests.

Alexander VI: Reigned from August 11, 1492 to August 18, 1503. The famous Borgia pope who brought the reputation and power of the Holy See to its lowest ebb.

Pius X: Reigned from March 11, 1913 to December 1, 1918. The reformer began during his pontificate. He excommunicated Martin Luther.

Gregory XIII: (St. Gregory) reigned from May 13, 1572 to April 10, 1585. Gave the world the Gregorian calendar.

Pius VII: Reigned from March 14, 1800 to August 20, 1823. Kept prisoner in France by Napoleon I from July 5, 1809 to January 2, 1814 because he opposed the emperor's marriage designs and political aims in Italy.

Pius IX: Reigned from June 16, 1846 to February 7, 1878. Under him, the popes lost temporal power by the unification of Italy, 1870. No pope ever left the confines of the Vatican from that date until 1929, when Pius XI negotiated with Premier Benito Mussolini the Lateran treaty creating the Vatican state and regularizing church-state relations.

Pius XI also proclaimed the dogmas of the immaculate conception and of papal infallibility.

Longest Papal Reigns.
Pius IX: Reigned for 31 years, 7 months, 22 days. (1846-78).

Leo XIII: Reigned for 25 years, 5 months. (1878-1903).

Pius VI: Reigned for 24 years, 6 months, 14 days. (1775-99).

Pope Pius XI reigned three days less than 17 years.

Shortest Papal Reigns.
Urban VII: Thirteen days, September 15-27, 1590.

Celestine IV: Seventeen days, October 25-November 10, 1241.

Sisinnio: Twenty days, February 4-24, 708 A. D.

Number of popes, average reign, nationality of popes.
There have been 261 popes, including Pius XI.

All of the first 31 except Dionisio (261 A. D. to 272 A. D.), were martyred. The first 56 have been canonized.

The average length of a papal reign is 7 years, 11 weeks, 3 days.

All the popes since 1523 have been Italian. There have been 210 Italian popes, 14 from France, 13 from Greece, 5 from Germany, 5 from Syria, 3 from Spain, 3 from Africa, 2 from Palestine, 2 from Saxony, 1 from Holland, 1 from England, 1 from Portugal and 1 from Rumania.

Location of the Papacy.
The popes lived in Rome from the time of St. Peter until 1305, when Clement V, a Frenchman, was elected pontiff. Clement refused to go to Rome because of the anarchical conditions there and in Italy generally. After traveling about France, Clement finally established residence at Avignon, where the papacy was maintained by the six subsequent popes, all of whom were French, until 1378. Urban VI, successor to the last Avignon pope, Gregory XI, took the papacy back to Rome, 1378. Four successive rival popes, called the anti-popes of Avignon, continued to reign in this city until 1430, refusing to recognize the popes in Rome.

Clings to Life.
Meanwhile, the badly wounded Pledgeer clung grimly to life. Doctors held little hope for his recovery, however. Mrs. Barfield did not require hospital treatment. After the shooting she immediately telephoned home offices of the company and related what had occurred.

Hanks resided here at 2795 Peachtree road.

The body of Hanks was taken to Spring Hill. He is survived by his wife; a son, Louis M. Hanks Jr.; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Hanks, and three brothers, J. P. Hanks Jr., William Hanks and Harry Hanks, all of Montgomery, Ala. Funeral plans will be announced.

The shooting occurred just a week after a similar affray in the washroom of the Citizens & Southern National Bank building, in which Grover C. Middlebrooks, prominent attorney, was shot and wounded by his half brother, W. M. Middlebrooks.

W. M. Middlebrooks ended his life Thursday morning on a Southern railway trestle at Conley under a speeding passenger train.

Pope's Body to Rest In Three Caskets

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Vatican workmen were ordered today to make ready three caskets in which the body of Pope Pius will be buried in the Grottoes of St. Peter's.

The pontiff's body will be placed in them in an elaborate funeral service observing traditions centuries old.

The inner one, in which the body will lie, is to be of cypress wood lined with red satin, having a cross of walnut on the cover.

It will be placed inside a second of lead, a quarter of an inch thick and weighing nearly 900 pounds. On its cover toward the head will be a cross in relief and it will have a skull and cross bones in the middle. At the bottom will be the family coat of arms of His Holiness.

During the service it will be soldered shut and Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli will assist in applying seals to it.

Both caskets will be placed inside the third, made of polished elm.

Four million dollars of this was specifically for fighting planes.

The number of planes was not mentioned, but, on the basis of price, probably was not more than 100. The planes represent only a portion of British contracts for airplane manufacture in this country, which now call for 650 planes.

The department also announced the shipment of planes and other war materials valued at $1,443,199.13 to Great Britain in January.

During the same month, France took out licenses for $568,366.34 of war materials, mostly airplanes, and had shipped to her $1,289,746 in airplanes.

BRAZIL BECOMES BIG ARMAMENT CUSTOMER.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP) State department statistics published today showed Brazil was the United States' second leading armaments customer in Latin America during January.

Licenses were issued for export of $150,244 of equipment to Brazil, compared with $254,716 to Peru. Licenses for Argentina totaled $31,170.

Licenses for Brazil included $86,000 of machine guns and automatic small arms, $64,184 for aircraft and parts, and $60 for ammunition.

Here's That Lady's Diary Again

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

Sunday—A quiet family day this started out to be with only a beef and kidney pie on hand for dinner. But two friends from Europe descended upon us to our delight, and I trotted out canned soup for the first course, tossed off a fancy salad and thanked my lucky stars for the quart of home-made mince meat Sally B., had brought by the day before.

Monday—Talked to one of the smartest gals in business. She sets furniture styles and decorative fashions. She showed me plans for new rooms she's doing with color samples—one bedroom has palest mauve-pink walls, a grey carpet, turquoise bedspread and chair, flowered curtains with mauve-pink ground. A living room has pale gold walls, a deep gold carpet, furniture coverings in dusty sage-green.

Slenderizing Lines

You'll be delighted with the way this dress fits. Gathers beneath the smooth shoulder yoke give just enough fullness over the bust. Darts at the waistline make it look slim and trim, but they don't make it snug; you'll have plenty of leeway for action. The inverted pleat in the front makes the skirt easy to move about in. Thus 1652-B is just as comfortable as it is becoming.

This dress has such a trim and tailored look that you'll enjoy having a runabout version of it in thin wool, flat crepe or sports silk, as well as in sunfast cottons for home wear—gingham, percale and calico. It's a diagram design that practically makes itself; you can finish it in no time.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1652-B is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. With long sleeves, size 38 requires 4 5/8 yards of 35-inch material; with short sleeves, 4 1/8 yards. 2 1/4 yards of bias.

A Few Words Anent Forcing Takeouts

By Harold Sharpsteen.

After nearly 10 years of continuous harping from all sides on the subject of one-round forcing takeouts, it seems now relatively safe to assume most bridge players have learned to recognize the significance of one-over-one responses. That is, most of them are beginning to realize the importance of rebidding their hands after partner's takeout in another suit provided opponents are obliging enough to remain silent during the bidding.

OVERCALL UPSETS THEN?
For some reason, an intervening bid seen over various types of responses to opening suit-bids are by no means altered simply because an opponent decides to inject an intervening overcall into the auction. The simple reason for this fact is, the strength of responder's hand varies, depending on whether opponent overcalls or passes.

VOLUNTARY TAKEOUTS.
The fact that an opponent intervenes with a bid guarantees

Lucky Ann Sheridan Will Play Lead In Walter Wanger's "Winter Carnival"

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 10.—Ann Sheridan is about to be "discovered" by Walter Wanger. In other words, she has been borrowed by Wanger from Warners to play the lead in "Winter Carnival," an exciting tale against the snowy background of Dartmouth College (Wanger's Alma Mater)—climaxed with the famous winter carnival. Wanger is the lad who "discovered" Charles Boyer when Hollywood would have none of him, and his resurrection of Hedy Lamarr from Metro is now movie history. So congratulations, Miss Sheridan.

Darryl Zanuck is negotiating with Paramount, which owns the screen rights to Maeterlinck's "The Blue Bird." He wants to star Shirley Temple in it, which will be something new in roles for the No. 1 box-office number.

'Let's Be Casual' Is Motto Of Crowd

By Caroline Chatfield.

WATCHDOGS: Woman uncertain of her position, boasting that she's always been a good wife, standing sentinel by her husband's side to be sure he doesn't put the lie on her.

The jealous husband taking his stance in the doorway to observe the men "she" dances with—and how!

"Although I live in the deep country, I try to keep up with the times," writes a correspondent, "and I am awfully puzzled about this thing they call sophistication. The dictionary doesn't make it sound too good but magazines and new books do. What about it?"

Yes, the new dictionary uses some naughty words to define sophistication which makes us wonder how the word got into high society, but it did. If there's one thing above another that the modern man wishes to have said of her it is that she is a sophisticate. Nearly as I can make out this means she's been everywhere, seen everything, tried everything, got rid of all inhibitions and is rarin' to impress a crowd of acquaintances with the fact that she's shock proof and highly contemptuous of any who aren't.

Be casual, is the motto of her crowd, take it in stride whatever it is. A cocktail glass is as emblematic and the spirit of the society is let her go Gallagher and don't be cramped by conventions left over from an age of innocence and ignorance.

For instance: Would you send a dependent parent to a home for indigent old or keep the dependent parent in your own home? That question appeared in a recent quiz designed to show you whether or not you could qualify for the society of sophisticates. If you'd toss papa and mama out to beg, you 10 points fitness to be long. If you'd house them under your roof, you had 10 points handicap to overcome before you could take out papers.

However, the hoop must be rolling, for it has got under the skirt of the new number and if it's true that feminine fashions express the feminine mind and foretell masculine reaction to same, then we are a-tossing papa and mama out to beg straight and their toddlers dislodge, when girls could blush because they hadn't heard and tried everything, when soft femininity didn't have to masquerade under a terrapin exterior—back to the once-upon-a-time when the only thing the smoking car and the drawing room had in common was a place to sit.

Maybe, after all, the dictionary is the best reading matter extant. At least it calls a spade a spade and doesn't hesitate to use a dirty word when it's in order. And the dictionary doesn't leave us puzzled and befuddled.

Style Forecasts Doom Thick Waist

By Ida Jean Kain.

You may or may not like the fashion forecast for spring: Lots of material above and below a very small waist, with skirts short, and wide shoulders are here to stay because they do such marvelous things for the hips.

That part about the "very small waist" seems to be thrown in just casually, but nobody needs to have a picture painted of the silhouette with broad shoulders, short skirt and thick waist. This season, the transition from buxom to boxy is merely a matter of too much waistline.

Any time the fashion queens put their heads together and decree generous yardage in our frocks, it is understood that we must exercise more restraint about the mid-section. If there is anything worse than having a dress skintight, it's having one with "lots of material above and below" the waist which is not tiny.

So you can take a tuck in your waistline, stay away from the new styles, or wear them and look boxy. For most women, exercise comes easier than giving up the fun of a new fashion, especially when stretching and twisting will slim the waist in no time flat. And in the process you also tighten up the muscular girdle, which gives this midsector a trimmer appearance.

For double quick action on the midriff, combine stretching and twisting with bending, as in this exercise. On the knees on the floor, arms stretched high overhead and hands clasped. Without lowering the arms, sit down to the right of the feet, return to the beginning position, and sit down to the left of the feet. Continue to stretch upward throughout the exercise.

You can lose those excess waistline inches quickly if you focus your attention on the area between the hips and ribs. Sit on the floor with legs spread wide apart, knees straight. Have the arms straight out to the sides and swirl first to one side, then to the other, trying to touch the right hand to the left instep, the left hand to the right instep. Hold the back straight and bend only at the waist, twisting more than you bend.

By the time you have slimmered down an inch or so, you will be able to carry this exercise a step further. Instead of holding the arms out from the shoulders, stretch them high overhead, with hands clasped, and then bend and try to touch the hands to the outstretched feet.

Party Games Are Riot Of Fun

Such excitement! Frank and Joe as "Fighting Roosters" and the crowd cheering each batter as he gets an edge on the other.

How to play this hilarious game? Each "rooster" puts a right hand behind his back, clasps his left foot with it. And then—believe it or not—grasps his right arm with his left hand behind his back.

And now, ready for action, "roosters" hop onto a rug—or into a circle which you've drawn on the floor.

Signal to start is a "bong bong" you give on a bell—and then the roosters leap at each other, shove and crawl until one's pushed out of the ring or lets go with hand or foot.

After this rollicking match, start the music for a Broomstick Cut-in Dance. Give three men broomsticks for partners. Others pair off with girls.

Then each man with a broomstick steps up to a dancing couple. Tapping the man on the shoulder, he presents his "Miss Broom" and dances away with the real girl.

The man who has been tapped dances around the room with this "stick" of a partner, then taps someone else—and so on. Such gala stunts as these make the crowd shout "Hurrah" when you ask them over to a big get-together or a little one.

For that Washington Birthday party, stage a Flag Guessing Contest with pictures of the flags of many nations. Clever to dress up in old-time costumes for a barn dance, match strips of calico for partners for supper.

MY DAY Achievements Give Hope for Future

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON.—Yesterday at 1 o'clock the Spanish ambassador Senor Fernando De Los Rios, brought the Spanish artist, Mr. Don Luis Quintanella, who is doing the decoration of the Spanish building at the World's Fair in New York city, to present to me one of the five sets of Goya prints, newly struck off from the old plates. I have been hearing about these prints which were to be given me for some time, and now, at last, they have come and I want to tell you about them.

In the first place, the work has all been done while the war has been going on. The binding is white vellum with gold tooling, and I think the word exquisite describes it best. Those who know Goya's work will realize that artistically these prints are a joy to look at. This, however, is not the thing which to me is moving about this gift. The first page has my name inscribed on it and underneath in Spanish: "A Remembrance From the People of Spain." The artist said that it was given in appreciation of the fact that I had been interested in feeding the women and children of Spain during these past years of war wherever there was suffering and need.

A few people who believe that the Loyalist government of Spain is Communist and anti-religious have written me during the past weeks denouncing my acceptance of such a gift. I have told them that the gift had been proffered me. It now has been made to Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, a person, and comes from the people of Spain and I accept it with deep appreciation and gratitude. These men, women and children have suffered much and yet they want to give something as a token of their appreciation for what has been done to alleviate their suffering.

What I know of the Loyalist government today makes me feel that we in this country would call it a democratic form of government, and though that government may have shown at one time antagonism to religion, this seems to have changed. I think we must accept the fact that in a war both sides are guilty of excesses. It seems to me that these books are sufficiently interesting for them to be shown at a public place. I am therefore arranging to lend them to a museum here for a time in order that other people may realize that art is still alive in the soul of a people in spite of the ravages of war.

During the afternoon yesterday, I had several interesting meetings. One, on the possible organization for the production and sale of handicraft work in the country and another with the state and regional directors of the farm security work throughout the United States. This group of men is dealing with our rural problems at the bottom of the economic ladder where the yearly income has sometimes in the past been under $80 a year. Their stories of achievement give one hope for the future.

Here Are Seven Keys to Vite

By Dr. William Brady.

Unhappily, so far as I have been able to ascertain, the 147 special editors of Webster's entirely overlooked cri when they were preparing the second edition, published in 1935, but numerous voluntary editors of this column have challenged my claim as inventor, for they assert that cri is a French word centuries old and means cry, shout or screech. I don't mind that. In United States cri (kree) means whatever common respiratory infection you happen to have, if you are on the square and not trying to pass it to those around you.

Two or three years ago I asked readers to send in their suggestions for a new word which would express the general idea contained in the following paragraph: Preservation of the characteristics of youth, better-than-average nutritional condition as manifested in lower death rates, better growth and development, extension of the prime of life in both directions, material improvement of the life expectation of adults, higher average level of positive health throughout the life cycle, greater pep, more vitality, the highest degree of natural immunity, an adequate fund of reserve power to tide over emergencies and strains, the resiliency of the untamed animal or the primitive savage.

Fearing readers might not be interested enough to submit suggestions I intimated that if any geek had a word for it the word would be worth $25 to me. The geeks had thousands of words for it! But only a score or so were new words, and finally the choice narrowed down to two words, which were not so new as they were promising. The words "vite" and "vitality." On fractional distillation we obtained from these words the, as I fondly believed, brand-new word "vite," and we have been using the word "vite" in the sense indicated, ever since.

Now comes another voluntary editor who informs me that vite is not a new word, for the French have used it for centuries, and it means quick, fast, speedily, lively. Very well, let the French have it their own way and pronounce it as it is pronounced as it is spelled and it means everything included in the paragraph above—and lively, sprightly, with spirit and animation, vigor, vivacity, zeal, nimble, spry, eager, ardent and fit, if you like.

Wallace Attacks Farm Price Plan

Warns of Bootlegged Products, Increased Food Costs If Government Fixes Minimum Scale.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Secretary Wallace warned senators today against a bill to fix minimum prices for farm products, saying that if the government attempted this there would be widespread bootlegging of farm crops and a billion-dollar increase in consumers' food costs.

Furthermore, he said it would not help the farmer.

The administration farm head testified before the senate agriculture committee which is considering a "cost-of-production" farm bill sponsored by 17 senators.

Instead of trying a new farm program, Wallace suggested, congress should find funds to increase benefit payments to farmers under the present farm act.

"There's no doubt that the farmer is entitled to the cost of

Gran Barrimore In Lifelike Role

Makes Tight-Fisted Heroine of Whiteoaks Live in All Her Unique Power.

Ethel Barrymore, first lady of the legitimate theater's first family, came to Atlanta's Erlanger theater last night to present a smoothly flowing character study of old Gran Whiteoak, tight-fisted heroine of Mazo de la Roche's famous "Whiteoaks of Japan" novels.

With Gran Whiteoaks were the whole Whiteoak clan, from the precocious grandchild, "Wakefield," handled with a surprising amount of naturalness by a younger named Peter Fernandez, to the sensitive, sickly "Finch," who was played by Atlanta's contribution to the cast, Harry Ellerbe.

When Miss Barrymore hobbled onto the stage in all of her Whiteoak age, it was immediately noticeable that the Canadian country house took on an especial brightness.

More Than Acting. For in some respects Miss Barrymore is Gran Whiteoaks. It was good acting, of course. But there was something there over and above acting. It might be that she is somewhat of Gran Whiteoak of the stage—reserved, dominating, and with an old and respected name.

Last night she put this into character. Perhaps it is just the genius of the Barrymore, but from the wobble of her cane to the knowing chuckle of an old woman, she was old Gran, dominating her children and grandchildren. With the same wobble, and the same attitude, she dominated the stage and the capacity crowd of Atlanta theater lovers who went to see her.

With her were two young actors, one who laughed heartily and played a good foil to Miss Barrymore, and one who was a good contrast to the old Gran.

The first was Renny, the red-haired, aggressive Renny who dared to cross the dominating old lady who ruled the others so completely. Robert Shayne was Renny.

The other was Finch, Harry Ellerbe, of Atlanta, Georgia, and Georgia Tech, portrayed the music-starved young grandson of a horse-loving and whisky-drinking family. Portrayed it well, and in respect to it, he was the most difficult part of the play.

He carried it with such a feeling for what must have been a distasteful part was a credit to this Atlanta-born actor.

Old Gran's "I ought to be the head of the house and daughter, were capably handled by Wally Birch, Reynolds Denniston and Lenore Chippendale.

The remainder of the cast, composed of Allan Hale, Audrey Ridgwell, Martha Hodge and Joseph Rogers, carried through very smoothly—as well as could be discerned, with the Barrymore brilliance on the same stage.

Ickes Declares American Press Is Not as Free 'As It Should Be'

Secretary Declares It Is Still Best and Freest in World, But That News Is "Distorted, Colored and Suppressed."

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Secretary Ickes declared tonight that, "owing to economic terrors, our press is not as free as it should be in a democracy."

In a prepared address seasoned with criticism and commendation, he told the National Lawyers Guild:

"Despite abuses that are inexcusable from the point of view of the press itself, no fair-minded persons would deny that American newspapers are still the best, as they are the freest, in the world."

Generally speaking, they print much misleading propaganda, they color the news to suit themselves, they distort the news, they suppress the news, they even invent "news," but they also carry much news that is vital to the public weal."

Oppose U. S. Control. The secretary of the interior listed himself as a defender of the freedom of the press and opined government control of the press would be a "calamity."

In correcting two "overstatements" he made in a recent radio debate, Ickes said he was interested in seeing if newspapers "will be as candid in admitting their errors of overstatement with reference to my slip on these two items as I have been."

Answers Gannett. The secretary devoted a large portion of his address to the reaction to his radio discussion with Frank Gannett, New York publisher, last month.

"The secretary's statement," he said, "without even attempting to meet my points, except in one instance, my opponent immediately began to shout 'unfair' and a good portion of the press followed his lead."

"A checkup of the stories that appeared in 16 Gannett papers, the first day shows that, altogether, 487 inches of space were given to Gannett and 158 to Ickes."

Ickes related he had stated that, so far as he knew, no newspaper had carried an article on a scientist's study of the effect of tobacco. He added:

"It is my duty to admit that this was an exaggeration. I should have said that the majority of the newspapers had suppressed this story."

The second "overstatement" concerned a Boston accident. "I said that the sensational story of the killing of two men by the chauffeur of a department store did not appear in any Boston newspaper, except one," the secretary recalled. "Frankly, I should have phrased my statement in different terms so as to make the point I wanted to bring out, namely, that department stores, being heavy advertisers, are 'sacred cows' to newspapers."

Certain newspapers, he said, did not mention that the owner of the car was a department store.

Criticism Heard. Ickes charged that during the 1938 campaign William Randolph Hearst "used every conceivable weapon to discredit President Roosevelt, yet on the day after the election, Hearst had the effrontery to write:

"If Mr. Roosevelt is a good President, if he is a democratic President, the Hearst newspapers will support him again."

Of the Chicago Tribune, Ickes said: "Last fall the 'Mourning Kernel' employed one Clifford Blackburn, who had been suspended by WPA for drunkenness, and later discharged for letting a tree fall on a city truck, to write a series of articles smearing WPA."

He said Howard Hunter, assistant WPA administrator, "produced facts and affidavits to disprove case after case." Ickes commented: "Need I say that the Tribune characteristically did not see fit to print Mr. Hunter's refutation?"

The radiomarine station at Chatham, Mass., received this last message from the operator on the stricken Lightburne at 12:37 a. m. (E. S. T.):

"Going off now to go on board cutter Active."

Radiomarine said the 16 men, rescued shortly after 10 p. m. last night, had been taken to the Block Island coast guard station. The last contingent to be taken from the Lightburne numbered 20 men, including the captain.
